THE SOUDAN—The Soudan is a general term applied to that vast and vaguely defined region of Central Africa lying between the Equator on the south and the Great Desert on the north, and stretching from east and west nearly across the continent. The Egyptian Soudan is generally supposed to begin at Assouan, or the first cataract of the Nile on the north, but perhaps might more properly be said to commence at the point where the Nile makes its great westward bend. It extends to the great lakes on the south, and from Abyssinia on the east to and inclusive of Darfur and the provinces of the Bahr El Ghazal on the west. This extensive region, many times larger than Egypt itself, was not conquered by the Egyptians all at once, but has been annexed piece by piece, and at no time can it be said to have been thoroughly subdued or fully occupied. The Egyptian Government at Cairo was continually short of funds, and the Soudan in company with the remainder of Egypt was the victim of many abuses. The Government assumed the monopoly of almost everything on the Nile, even to the sale of seven poor parcels, one of which was blind and the other lame. Contracts were sold to the farmers of taxes. Each agent made a handsome profit for himself, so that when the taxes, which covered every conceivable means of industry down to the wheel which raised the water from the Nile, were paid by the laborer, they were many times larger than the original exorbitant appropriation, and we even hear of cases on the Nile where the same taxes were collected two and three times over by different officials. Hence constant rebellions and successful wars of the False Prophet.

ARABI AND NANA SAHIB—It is a very striking illustration of the traditional forms of Eastern warfare, that the lying bulletin in which Arabi Pasha announced to his followers the destruction or capture of the whole English fleet in the recent action before Alexandria is an almost literal copy of that which Nana Sahib, in July, 1857, endeavored to sustain the falling courage of his sepoys when the news of Havelock's advance upon Cawnpore to avenge the massacre began to spread among them. "The Queen of the English," wrote the Arabi Pasha of the Ganges, "gathered a mighty host to fight against us, and put her soldiers upon many ships, and sent them as far as Egypt. But the Pundiah (Sultan) heard of their coming and he sent and bade the Pasha of Egypt destroy them all. Then the Pasha of Egypt gathered his ships of war and poured the thunder of his cannon upon the fleet of the unbelievers till all their vessels were taken or destroyed, and the yellow-faced English were sunk to the bottom of the sea." Arabi has indeed improved upon his original by proclaiming his intention of bringing the captured iron-clads up country to Cairo! But if the recent murders at Cairo and elsewhere, and the alleged crushing of helpless men under the wheels of trains, are truly reported, it must be owned that the Egyptian Dictator has copied Nana Sahib's humanity as well as his veracity.

MUTINY IN THE CAMP—There is trouble in the camp of the Salvation Army in Ontario. About a week since Lieutenant Courts was directed by Major Moore, Commander-in-Chief, to go to Toronto and assist Capt. Bailey. Jealousy has arisen between these two officers, which culminated in a row. Lieut. Courts organized the usual nightly meeting on the market where he gathered a crowd and marched to the "barracks," the new skating rink across York street bridge. On reaching the rink, however, it was found to be in possession of the captain, who was holding a private meeting, and the lieutenant's brigade was refused admission. The windows of the building were then forced open, and the lieutenant carried the fort by storm and the captain's force driven out, or in other words, his meeting was dismissed. The lieutenant then held the fort, and explained his grievances. He claims that "Capt." Bailey ignores his services, and he intimates that the captain has not accounted for the disposal of funds collected at the various meetings. It is stated that Captain Bailey has complained at headquarters that Lieut. Courts is mutinous, and has had the lieutenant's commission withdrawn. Lieut. Courts claims that the rank and file of the army are with him, and that if his commission is taken away he will organize a rival army.

HOW TO GAUGE A TURK—On July 12 Sheikh Essad and Lebib Effendi, delegates to the Khedive from the Porte, left Alexandria for Constantinople. The ordinary interpretation of such a move would be that the Porte had withdrawn its support from Arabi Pasha. "But," says the correspondent of the London Times, "I am reminded of a dictum of the late Sir Henry Bulwer, to this effect:—When the Turk does anything, consider what is the reasonable, straightforward interpretation to place on that act. Then eliminate absolutely that conclusion. Any other may be possible, but that certainly will not be." One result, however, of their mission will be novel. They obtained no lakhs from the Khedive, but they sold to the Khedive for £100 the key of the private code between the Sultan and Dervish Pasha.

AWFUL WARNING—At one of the Thomas concerts at Chicago the other evening the electric lights suddenly went out, leaving the audience in perfect darkness for a few minutes. This was thought glorious by some of the young couples present, and over in the southeast corner of section B some one was heard to say in a suppressed undertone: "Joe—willikens, Jusie, what the deuce have you got in your mouth?" Just then the light blazed up again and a young man was noticed holding his hand over his mouth. A stream of blood was trickling through his fingers, and the expression on his face touched the observer's heart. His girl took something out of her mouth and put it in her pocket, looking pained and guilty. She led him quietly to the door and they passed out. Young ladies should not wear their hairpins in their mouths. It is not the place for them, and a wound in the side of the jaw made by coming suddenly and painfully in contact with a cruel two-pointed hairpin at a time when his heart is set on a moment of ecstatic bliss might result in a coolness on the part of the young man which would be heart-breaking.

POLITICAL ASSESSMENTS—At a meeting of the Washington Cabinet, the principal topic of discussion was Brewster's opinion on the subject of political assessments. The opinion was accompanied by a letter from Folger expressing his views on the subject. The President expressed his views freely and fully. They were in substance that no person in any of the executive departments declining to contribute shall on that account be subject to discharge or criticism, and no attempt to injure him on this ground will be countenanced or tolerated. These conclusions are in accordance with the views expressed by the President in his letter of acceptance on July 15th, 1880, in which he said:—"I will add that by the acceptance of public office, whether high or low, one does not, in my judgment, escape any of his responsibilities as a citizen, or lose or impair any of his rights as a citizen, and he should enjoy absolute liberty to think, speak, and act in political matters according to his own will and conscience, provided that he honorably, faithfully, and fully discharge all his official duties."

$21,000 FOUND IN A CUPBOARD—A rich find has been made in a cupboard of a house on Spruce-street, Philadelphia, occupied until recently by two old maiden ladies, Jane and Susan Shaw. The former inherited from a brother a fortune of $60,000, with the understanding that she should pay her sister Susan an annuity of $50. Jane died in April of last year, leaving her possessions to her sister for life, and then to other relatives. Susan quit this life in April of this year. She left her property to the same relatives as Jane with one exception. Charles S. Forsyth, who was executor of both wills while making an inventory stumbled over four mysterious chests in a cupboard of the Shaw House. No mention had been made of them in the will. When opened they were found to be full of gold and silver coin amounting in all to $21,000. The money has been awarded to Jane Shaw's estate.

Not long after his removal from the House of Commons to the House of Lords, Disraeli met a brother peer in the street, who asked him how he liked the change. "Like it," exclaimed Disraeli, forgetting himself for the moment, and blundering out the truth, "like it I feel as if I were dead, or buried alive!" Then, seeing the expression of discomfiture on the peer's face, he added hastily, with a courtly bow and an irresistible smile:—"and in the land of the blessed!"

A Brooklyn man, who used all the arguments that his ingenuity could devise to dissuade his son from getting married, finally hit upon an expedient that had the desired effect. He procured his appointment in an Illinois divorce court.

It is said the belles of this City are learning to play the banjo, with the view of attracting admirers; but those young ladies who can play the violin succeed much better in drawing their bows.—Ex

A certain leader made a speech the other day without making use of the expression, "langubashing in a British battle," and the club to which he belonged expelled him forthwith.
