

Two-sided Question
 Louis... the complaint made of incompetent servants. Less is said about their and incompetent mistresses, but the... of young women who... the position of mistress with... knowledge of its requirements than the newly imported servant of... Such women might not to expect good service. They do not deserve it, and their ignorance makes them incapable of giving the instruction that makes good servants.

The writer... the following conversation between two young women... of whom was soon to be married.

"I do not dread sleeping house," she said. "Too much rather board, but Frank would keep house. But do you know I never made even a loaf of bread in my life!"

"Nor I," said her companion, in a tone indicating that she thought there was merit in the admission.

"Once I tried to make a sponge-cake, and it was an awful fizzle," said the bride to be.

"But you'll keep a servant, of course?"

"Mercy, you! I hardly know the first thing about housekeeping. Somehow or other, mamma always attended to things at home."

"When I marry," said the young woman, not yet enjoying the facility of being "engaged," "I shall have it all ready underlined that I am not responsible for affairs in the kitchen."

"There is no fault but how ignorant you are of the kitchen," says I am so sure of myself."

"I shall have a servant, of course?"

"You thought, when we shall just depend on our servant, but I dread it, for you know it is immediate and ignorant servants are."

"Somebody might have been said about the ignorance and mediocrity of young mistresses, and about long-suffering husbands, and divorces that come from the angry words and bitterness caused by incompetent housekeeping; but they are women who are not sensible enough to know how broad and serious a view of this very serious matter—Yvonne's Companion.

Serious Burns.
 When a serious burn occurs, the clothes must be removed as soon as the fire is extinguished. The patient should be laid on his back, and a sheet or blanket pulled up to his chest, without pinning, as the least grazing brings the skin too. The injured part should be thoroughly debrided with water, and the clothes cut away. If any part of the garment sticks, let it remain. Dip sheets in a thick solution of common baking soda water, and place over the burn, covering completely tightly so as to keep them in place. As soon as a dry spot appears on this dressing, wet it again by spraying with soda and water over it. As the saturating will exclude the air there will be no smarting. A rubber sheet, a piece of oil cloth, a glass-paned cloak, or any water-proof article can be spread on the bed with a blanket over it to receive the exudate. Should the feet be cold heat must be applied to them, and a little stimulant given if the pulse is weak. It is well to have the bed covering warm and light. A doctor should be called without much delay. A burn is serious in proportion to the amount of surface involved. A deep burn is not as dangerous as a superficial one twice the size. In severe burns, pain is an encouraging sign; it shows that the nerves are still vitality left. Stools may be treated in much the same way. Sweet oil may be poured over the surface and covered with flour. Anything that excludes air will relieve pain. Patients suffering from such accidents should have concentrated, nourishing food—and as much as they can take with ease. In order to do the necessary repairing, nature must have plenty of material with which to accomplish its work. Physicians should prescribe opiates.

For Parents.
 There is a lesson for parents in the following story:—A pretty story about a German family discloses the secret of a happy home, where joy abounded, though there are many good and noble things.

A teacher once lived in Saratoga who had hard work to support his family. His chief joy in life, however, was in his nine children, though he was in a tight task to support them all.

His brain would have been, and his heart sunk had he not trusted in his heavenly Father, when he thought of the number of jackets, stockings and dresses in the course of a year, and the quantities of bread and butter they would eat.

His house, too, was very small quarters for the many beds and cribs, to say nothing of the room required for the noise and fun which the merry nine made. But the father and mother managed very well, and the house was a pattern of neatness and order.

One day there came a guest to the house. As they sat at dinner, the stranger looking at the hungry children, said, compassionately, "Poor man, what a cross you have to bear!"

"If a cross to bear?" asked the father, wondering; what do you mean?"

"Nine children and seven boys at that?" replied the stranger, adding bitterly, "I have but two, and each of them is a nail in my coffin."

"Mine are not," said the teacher, with prompt decision.

"How does that happen?" asked the guest.

"Because I have taught them the noble art of obedience. Isn't that so, children?"

"Yes," cried the children.

"And you obey me willingly?" the two girls laughed roguishly, but the seven youngsters shouted—

"Yes, dear father, truly."

Then the father turned to the guest and said: "Sir, if death were to come in at the door, waiting to take one of my children, I would say—and here he hurried off his velvet cap and hurried it at the door—"Rascal, who cheated you into thinking that I had one too many?"

The stranger sighed; he saw that it was only disobedient children that make a father unhappy.

Fun and Fancy.
 A clergyman who was officiating at the funeral of a young girl, began this discourse with, "Oh! may the bereaved father find consolation for the death of his only daughter—and then happening to remember there was another daughter, the offspring of a second marriage, he added hastily—by his first wife."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron. Its control over scrofulous diseases is unequalled by any other medicine.

A father asked a lay son what made him lie in bed so long. I am biased, said he, in hearing counsel every morning. Industry advises me to get up, cloth to be still; and so they give me twenty reasons for and against. It is my part to hear what is said on both sides; and by the time the cause is over dinner is ready.

B. B. B. Stood the Test.
 I tried every known remedy I could think of for rheumatism, without giving me any relief, until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters, which relieved I can highly recommend to all afflicted as I was." Henry Smith, Milverton, Ont. 2

Good morning, Pompey. Good morning, Massa Ceaser. What makes you carry your head down so, Pompey? Why don't you walk with your head upright like me? Massa Ceaser, you ever been tro' a field of wheat when he ripe? Yes, Pompey. Well, you take notice, some of the head tan up, and some hang down? Dem tan up, got no grain in 'em.

Try It.
 "What shall I do for this distressing Cough?" Try Hagyard's Pectoral Balm; it is soothing and healing to the throat and lungs, and lessens the tough mucus that renders breathing difficult or painful.

Jealousy.—That Brown is an excellent person isn't he, so some think; but then he's a designing fellow just the same.

J.—How is that? I have never heard anything of his discredit.

N.—Nevertheless, what I say is true. He is an architect.

Invisible but Instantaneous.

Howick.
 SHOCKING FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Monday evening last a dreadful accident happened near the village of Gorrie, where by a highly esteemed and well-to-do farmer named Gilpin met with his death. He, with a couple of others, were riding on a wagon from one of his farms to another; at one place one of the men jumped from the wagon, causing a board to fly up and start the horses, which ran away with Mr. Gilpin on the wagon doing his utmost to stop them. To keep himself from falling Mr. Gilpin appears to have thrown his arm around the front axle, and as his horses were plunging along, the tongue, which had come out of the neckhook, caught in the ground, and threw the wheels over, pinning Gilpin between them and the ground. In this position he was dragged along for some distance before parties could reach the horses and stop them, when it was found that his head was almost ground to pieces. Life was extinct. He had been in business in St. Marys before coming to this part of the country, was a member of the Baptist church and held in the highest respect. He leaves a wife and eight children—having been twice married to mourn his melancholy death.
