

LOOKED LIKE THERE WAS NO HOPE FOR HER.

Halifax Woman Had to Spend
Most Of Her Time In Bed Before She Got Tanlac—Gains
30 Pounds and Says Health is Perfect Now.

"I had lost twenty-five pounds in weight and had reached the point where I didn't think I could ever get well, but in less than two months I have gotten back all my lost weight and five pounds besides and was never before in better health," said Mrs. William Muir, 22 West St., Halifax, N.S.

"It was a year ago that I suffered a general breakdown. I ate so little that I lost weight and became so weak that I broke down completely. I had bursting headaches that kept me in bed for days at a time and left me so weak that when I got up I could hardly walk.

"My stomach was upset and sour all the time, my nerves collapsed and at night I worried so over my condition that I could hardly sleep at all, and lots of mornings was unable to get out of bed. At last I had to spend most of my time in bed and I was so despondent that it looked like there was no hope for me.

"I have taken four bottles of Tanlac and to-day I am perfectly well in every respect. The stomach trouble has all disappeared and my big gain in weight shows what a splendid appetite I have and how well my food agrees with me. I am completely relieved of headaches and nervousness and sleep like a child. I can do my housework with ease and don't know that I ever felt better in my life."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise, by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gullies, by Heber Andrews, in Portland, by H. C. Haines, St. Joseph, Salmonville, by Mrs. J. Gushue, in Marytown, by Exploits Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Flat Islands, by William Samson, in Jamestown, by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisporte by Uriah Breake.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

UNCONSCIOUS SELF PORTRAITS.

RUTH CAMERON

When anyone criticizes another person, he gives the person to whom he makes the criticism not only a deliberately planned idea of that other person but an unconscious impression of himself. Especially if you have a n y previous knowledge of the two.

Don't you think so?

Here is the sort of thing I mean.

Paints Her Own Picture, Too.

I have in my acquaintance two sisters who do not get along at all well together. One of them told me plaintively the other day how the other had refused to do a small favor she had asked of her. The picture she intended to present of her sister was of great ungraciousness and ingratitude, for she is better off than the latter and often gives her presents. And I did get that impression. But I also get a renewed memory of the personality of the sister who made the criticism—her habit of doing things for you and then of asking what she calls small favors at times so inconvenient that they become large favors, and of being most resentful when you ask to make your payment in some other way.

An Unfair Single Picture.

Of course if you do not know both parties to a criticism of this sort you may not get the double reaction. Sometimes I have had the experience of knowing just one and of getting such a very vivid and unpleasant impression of the person criticised that I conceived a violent dislike for him or her until I knew him—and realized anew the old truth that the right of any matter is never all on one side. After that, when I had criticisms of that person poured into my ears they gave me a double picture.

I often think that if people realized what was going on in the minds of their hearers when they made criticisms of this sort they would soon learn to make fewer.

Especially criticisms of close relatives, because even when they are entirely just, they are bad taste and consequently leave a bad taste in the hearer's mind.

Passing Judgment at the Same Time.

Of course there are listeners who like to draw their friends out to make criticisms of this sort by giving them all the sympathy and justification they crave. But don't you deceive yourself into thinking that they aren't passing judgment on you at the same time. In all likelihood they are.

HAPPINESS.

WILLIAMS

I had a little shanty, and I was happy there, with wife and niece and auntie, and grandma in her chair. I did not owe a shilling upon that small shanty, no creditors came drilling to dun me, up the road. And I was always saving against the day like some one safe and sane. My aunt, whose name was Alice, was dippy as could be, she said a costly palace was none too good for me. And grandma, in her sweater, backed aunt, and said, "Tut, tut! You should have something better—why live in this punk hut?" My niece indorsed their kicking, and nagged all day and all night, for she was tired of sticking in such a tawdry shack. With women thus embittered, what can a poor man do? At last they got me rattled, and all my coin I drew, I mortgaged and I borrowed and built a costly home, and ever since I've sorrowed, and care has creased my dome. I owe the village plumber who piled his art with skill; and at my house each corner is some one with a bill. I owe the gifted painter, whose language freely flows, and smokier and qualiter that language daily grows. I owe the paperhanger, the joiner for his beams, and I can hear their clangor at midnight, in my dreams. They all are rude and ranty, and I dissolve in tears when thinking of the shanty that knew my younger years.

"Heroic Sport."

Mother Nature has been in sportive humour this winter. And horsemen have found it difficult to interpret her moods, whilst, yesterday witnessed a riotous contribution of her caprices. Dense fog, down-pours of rain, ice surface floating with water, double decker holes and pockets of water lurking everywhere, and nothing but herolism born of the sport could determine men to match their fiery nags under such circumstances.

The feature event—the free-for-all trot—was fraught with interest and surprise, that race after five heats going to the good little mare "Sweet Echo." We congratulate this trim little horse and her courteous owner, "Gentleman John" on the victory. The laurels won by "Sweet Echo," she will carry with grace, as her breed for more than a hundred years have been wearing them. This mare is an aristocratic little miss, being by "Echo Todd" 2.14% property of A. B. Hastings, Torrington, Mass. Her grandpa, the great dead Todd, which twice sold for $30,000, her great grandpa, the illustrious Bingen 2.06%, whose purchase price was $35,000. Our veteran friend of the horse, R. A. Brehm, Esq., had the distinction of a personal acquaintance with Bingen. "Sweet Echo" is richly bred being scarcely exceeded by the great "Howard Mann" himself. Finest there was there, but like Howard Mann carried too much flesh and was not keyed up to a hard race. The pacing race was markedly interesting, being won by the good little native bred mare "May Taunton" after losing the first heat to Helen. May Taunton is worthy of note, being the country's product, and her driver owner has the gratifying distinction of bringing both her parents to the country as his property and racing the offspring to a successful issue against imported horses. A most interesting race could be arranged for, ice permitting, between "Sweet Echo" and "Howard Mann."

The defeat of Howard Mann being directly attributed to the double decker through which he was continuously floundering.
