The Heir of Bayneham

—AND—
Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"She has been like a beloved daughter to me," said the old lady; "having lived with her, I am at a loss how to live without her. I often fancied that the advertisements I read so constantly applied to her, but I dared not mention them, I wished her to grow quite strong and well before again discussing the subject of her return."

Lord Bayneham looked anxiously in his wife's face. It was very pale and thin, now that the bright blushes had faded—more beautiful than ever, though so changed.

"We must take care of you, my dear," he said; "a few weeks of entire happiness will bring the roses back again. Hilda, am I dreaming? Shall I really return to Bayneham, and take with me my wife and child?"

It was an evening of unclouded happiness. "I shall not return to Grosvenor Square without my treasures," said Lord Bayneham resolutely. "Had you not better prepare Lady Bayneham and Miss Earle for the surprise?" suggested Mrs. Massey. "No," replied Lord Bayneham; "I dare not trust Hilda from my sight again. They must return with me. It can be easily managed; there are no servants in the London house who know anything of the sorrow we have suffered or its cause. Those with whom I will think that, as I have been absent the greater part of the day, I have been to fetch their lady home."

"It is so sudden," said Mrs. Massey; "our house will have lost its sunshine." "Think how long mine has been in darkness," replied Lord Bayneham. "I must take Hilda and Lionel with me. I could not leave them, and my Lady Bayneham's face wore a startled look.

"Home!" she repeated; "what do you mean, Claude? Have you adopted him? Who is he?"

"Draw near to me, mother; and you Barbara, faithful friend, listen while I tell you who he is. The boy with a cherub's face is my son, Lionel Earle Bayneham, Viscount Hulsemer, and his mother is waiting for your welcome. Shall I bid her enter?"

Lady Bayneham could give no answer in words, but the caresses she lavished upon the child were answer enough. At last the wish of her heart was fulfilled; she held her son's child, the heir of Bayneham, in her arms. The grand old race was not doomed to extinction after all. She found words, however, when a beautiful woman with golden hair and shy, blushing face entered the room, and going up to her, said, "Can you pardon me, mother, for all the trouble I have caused you?"

For the first time in her life Lady Bayneham clasped her son's wife in her arms.

"It is I who should ask pardon from you," she said. "You shall be to me for the future as my dearest and best beloved daughter. Never let another secret stand between us."

"Am I quite forgotten?" said Barbara Earle, as she clasped Hilda's hand warmly in her own.

"But," said Lady Bayneham, "I do not quite understand; is this lovely boy your son, Hilda?"

"He is mine," replied the proud, fair mother.

Lionel had made himself quite at home with Barbara, and Lady Hilda knelt down to kiss him as he sat upon her knee. Lord Bayneham thought he had never gazed upon such a group.

Then came eager and hurried explanations. Lord Bayneham told eloquently the story of Captain Massey's generous and noble conduct, and Barbara Earle's eyes grew dim with tears. This man, who in the darkest hour of Lady Hilda's life had come to her rescue, was the one who had hopelessly loved her long years ago.

Long after midnight they sat, unwilling to end that happy meeting, and the golden-haired child slept in his father's arms, for Lord Bayneham could not endure to part with him.

They agreed that every explanation should be made then, and Lady Hilda related the history of her parents. Lord Bayneham told of Stephen Hurst's death, and then the whole subject was to be banished forever. In Lady Bayneham's heart the last remnant of pride had died out. She forgot her prejudices, and felt nothing but profound happiness when she gazed upon her son's beautiful wife and his noble little heir.

Three days afterward the May sun shone upon a beautiful scene enacted at Bayneham. The lord of the castle, with his wife and son, was returning home it was said from a foreign tour. Triumphant arches were everywhere erected "Welcome to Bayneham!" "Welcome Home!" met the eyes at every turn; flags and banners waved among the trees; and through the sweet, fragrant air, came the distant chiming of the joy-bells. The sky was blue, the flowers were all blooming, birds singing, the sun shining; there was no falser scene on earth than that.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save 50¢ and yet have the best cough remedy.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It opens the passages through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives relief wherever it is needed. Splendid for throat ticks, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

By industry we thrive; so let us look alive, and work six days a week; we should be cutting grass, the golden moments pass, they're going like streaks; it used to balk a man's dream of music and ice cream, of islands far away; I dreamed of idle things, of cabbages and kings, while neighbors put up hay. No wolves were at their doors, and at the village stores their crotchets stacked up high, while I must dig the price of prunes or shredded rice or anything I'd buy. Collectors eagle-eyed were ever at my side, with bills that long were due; the merchant whom I owed pursued me up the road, a fierce, excited crew. And then I saw at last the orrery of my past; I girded up my loins, and said, "I'll dream no more, but do the useful chore, and earn twelve brands of coins." From dreams that wasted time, from sloth that was a crime, I rose, a figure grand; I shooed old things away, and now, throughout the day, you see me pounding sand. I have a tranquil mind, and when I look behind I have no cause to fear that constables with writs and bailiffs throwing fits are spitefully drawing near. I work and pay my bills, and when I climb the hills no creditors pursue; but every merchant prince looks sweetly on me since I took up methods new.
