REGRET BUT NO REMORSE.

A neighbor of ours has recently lost her husband from a disease for which the most common treatment is an operation which is successful in the majority of cases.

One of the doctors wanted to operate. The woman was very much against it. She has never believed in operations. Another doctor in whom she has always had faith advised her to wait. She waited and her husband died.

The man has been much beloved and there has been feeling against his wife.

"I guess now she wishes she hadn't been so set against operations," said one of her neighbors when we were discussing the case. "I guess she'll be sorry the longest day she lives that she wouldn't let the doctors try that."

"Oh, no she won't," said another neighbor. "Don't you believe it. She isn't that kind. She will feel sure that he would have died anyway. She will be perfectly satisfied with herself and think she did the best thing that could be done. That's the way she always feels about things."

They blamed Her.

There was considerable bitterness in that summing up. My neighbor evidently considered this woman's failure to flagnate herself for not having done something different as a very grave fault.

But was it?

Or was it a sign of a well balanced mind?

She abided by the decision of a doctor in whom she had faith. She had acted according to her best judgment. There is no way of knowing for sure that the operation would have been successful. Is it not the part of sanity to marshal these facts instead of to torture herself with the thought that all would be well if she had only acted differently and that she is to blame for not having done so?

The tone of my neighbor's criticism shows a tendency most of us have to regard it as a virtue to flagnellate oneself for past mistakes when their consequences have been serious. We seem to think it shows a more sensitive, high type of individual.

Morbid! Look Out!

Quite as often it shows a neurotic ill balanced, morbid individual. Health and sanity and balance are threatened by this tendency.

And since the wisdom and efficiency of future acts depends on one's health and sanity and balance, surely life is not made better or happier for the individual or the people around him by the excessive remorse.

Of course there are people who will never admit to themselves that they have made mistakes or been wrong in any way. Nothing, not even tragedy, can pierce the armor of their self-complacency. But between these people and the people who give away to remorse for mistakes in judgment, is a very wide gap. And somewhere between the two, as always, is the golden mean of common sense and sanity.

This Way to Sanity.

If you have acted according to your best judgment you have done all that any mortal can do. In the future you will try to improve your judgment and to do still better. If you have suffered loss through unwise judgment it is natural that you will feel regret and grief, but you need not torture yourself with remorse. Just make up your mind to do better if you get the chance and turn your face forward, not backward. For that is the way of healthy life.

No Entries for $5,000 Prize.

LONDON.—(Canadian Press.)—So far no entry has been registered for the prize of $5,000 for a soaring flight of fifty miles and expert opinion has been heard to express the view that it will not be possible to use gliders for travel across the country after the manner of the vulture and albatross. Attention is being turned to the possibilities of installing an engine of 20 horsepower in a glider and an aircraft company has produced a two cylinder air-cooled engine which weighs 85 pounds and develops 18 horsepower. An attempt is being made to interest pilots who cannot afford to keep a full-sized aeroplane in this new engine.

Canadian Penitentiaries.

OTTAWA, ONT.—(Canadian Press.)

Grey walls which surround penitentiaries are not solely for the purpose of keeping inmates from escaping, but to keep persons from interfering with prison welfare by smuggling revolvers, whiskey and other undesirable goods to prisoners, said Brig. Gen. St. Pierre Hughes, superintendent of Canadian Penitentiaries, in an address upon the Canadian penitentiary system here recently. General Hughes gave a very interesting address on the improvements which had been made in the penitentiaries in recent years and explained fully the procedure which is followed from the time a prisoner is admitted until he receives his discharge.

Have you tried MRS. STEWART'S Graham Bread?

Stableman Hero.

Five women and two men were burned to death at the Alburgh County Almshouse at Hornellville, near Rochester, New York State, recently.

A fire broke out after a gas explosion in the basement, and the building was gutted. The victims were old bedridden inmates.

A stableman lost his life in an attempt to save them. His name is stated to be Charles Sanborn. He entered the blazing building and returned three times carrying the helpless inmates. The fourth time he went back the floor caved in.—Reuter.
