CHURCH HOCKEYISTS AUCTION POOLS ORGANIZE LEAGUE PASS IN KENTUCKY

Operate Under Same Conditions as City League.

An enthusiastic meeting was held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors last evening for the purpose of reorganizing the United School Hockey League, which met with such success last year. This year the league will be a stronger orranization than last, and will be run on the same plan as the city league. Arrangements are being made play the games in the Princess Rink, rule of the Kentucky State racing and it is altogether likely that some satisfactory agreement can be made. The teams in the league this year will be the same as last with one exception. St. James Presbyterian Church having entered the Presbyterian League. St. Mary's will take their place, and the cother teams are St. Peter's, Talbot Street Baracas and the Young Canadians. A cup will be put up, and at a meeting next Wednesday night, the officers of the league will be elected. It is likely that all players holding O. H. A. certificates for 1911-12 will be barred from the league, but this will not prevent those who do not make the local O. H. A. teams from playing. It is also likely the name of the league will be changed, but nothing definits about this has been done as yet. The colors of the teams were chosen last everying and will be a follows: St. Peter's, purple and black; Young Canadians, purple and black; Young Canadians, red and white: Baracas, blue and white: St. Mary's, green and white.

Ottawa, Nov. 16. — The New Edinary hookey club, champions of the Interprovincial Union, are not yet convinced that there will be no Alliar cup rames next month. President Iveson said today that they would hold a meeting Saturday for the purpose of dealing with the question. They intend, in tact, to make an appeal to the trustices, pointing out that they were promised games this December, and that were promised games this December, and the several of their players will be gonewent of the series being called of.

Umpire Bill Brennan showed the stuff he's made of in the third game. He made a decision of the sort that makes or breaks an umpire.

Snodgrass, in the first game, was hit twice by pitched balls. Many believed he stepped into the ball. When he went to the plate in the second game, a line was drawn for him by the umpire, past which he might not step. Evidently the umpire had talked over the matter.

With the score a tie, in the third game, Snodgrass was hit by a pitched ball. He was the first one up and the New York fans saw visions of a run. But Brennan interfered. He recalled Snodgrass, McGraw protested, but interfered. He recalled Snodgrass. McGraw protested, but showed the state of t

Fred Merkle has a memory. It concerns his failure to touch second three years ago, beating the Giants out of the pennant. In the third game Merkle had a run-in with Umpire Connolly. He was out trying to steal second, and didn't refrain from nollv. He was out trying to steal second, and didn't refrain from Merkle would be ejected.

See the great work Merkle has lived down the mistake of By his great work Merkle has lived down the mistake of By his great work Merkle has alled out. The play Merkle began abusing him when he was called out. The play was close, but Connolly said there was no question about his ruling. He tried to get away from Merkle, not caring to weaken the Giants by chasing him. Merkle followed him to first saying anything but complimentary things, Finally Connolly retorted:

"Well, anyway, when I played ball I never failed to touch second." And then Merkle's balloon went up. What he said would almost have merited murder. A fine of $100 was the reward for his choice wprds.

Jack Murray was the unfortunate Giant. Batting fourth, he was regarded as the "clean-up man." But in six games he didn't get a safe one. In the fifth game Coombs fanned eight men in five innings, Murray twice falling a victim of his benders. Murray paid Coombs a compliment in reply to a New ing a victim of his benders. "Orombs must have a lot of stuff the way you're missing "em." ("It like to see you up there," said Murray, with a laugh. "It has so much stuff his drop looks like a wild pitch."

"Coombs did have a "lot of stuff." His drop broke a foot in the last few feet it travelled. Apparently about to cross the plate at the batter's eyes, it dropped fast and crossed the plate several inches below the shoulder.

A tragedy occurred in the fourth game. Mathewson was pitching. He had won 2 to 1 over Bender and lost to Coombe, pitching. He had won 2 to 1 over Bender and lost to Coombe, 3 to 2. A week's rest failed to put him back into shape and he was hit hard.

The Glants were carrying a fellow named Charles V. Faust. The "V" presumably stands for victory. Faust dreamed he would pitch the Glants into a pennant. He couldn't pitch hay in a class Z league, but McGraw carried him as a mascot.

Faust amused the Glants in their nerve-racking fight for the pennant. He did more things than any other man 22 would do. Late in the game McGraw decided to take out Mathewson and let Crandall hat, The score was 4 to 2. Crandall had warmed up and when it have announced finished. Faust left the Glant's bench and started for the spot where the pitchers had been warming up.

As he started, a voice as strong as the announcer's shouted: "Faust will pitch in place of Mathewson." It was a blow to Matty, being forced out of a world's necles game for the first time. It was tragic, that Faust, the clown, should be announced as his successor.
