Farley and others the trial judge, Mr. Justice Irving disto the supreme court of Canada which held that certain evidence was inadmissible and ordered the trial which is now in progress. The greater part of the forenoon sitting of the court, Judge Dennis Murphy presiding, was occupied in the selection of a jury, the entire panel being exhausted before the jury was made up. The first witness had been examined when the prisoner rose and asked permission to make a statement. The interruption caused a sensation and Judge Murphy hastened to point out to the prisoner that as he had pleaded and the court only through his counsel.

Matters therefore stand as they are until the railway board hears whatever additional representations interested parties desire to make.

The original order of the board calling for a reduction of one-third in the rates was made some months ago, and south under it the rates were to be filed by April first. Subsequently an extension of two months was granted. During the month of May the company asked for a further extension of time till November, on the plea that sufficient time had not been given to make the change. This application the railway board refused, and emphasized its refusal by imposing the penalty of refusal by imposing the penalty of $100 a day for the failure on the part of the company to comply with this order.
