This built of timber, trending away to the heart of the continent in a direction a little south of east, is perhaps the greatest forest region in the world. A part of it strikes south of the Congo at the great northern band of the river, and the country embased within the history and the country embased with the countr b. aced within the big curve is covered with the proper working of the machines.

Scattered through the big woods within the Congo bend are little existence the traveler has no inkling until and we see a pretty little hammer strike he suddenly comes upon them. Here also, the end as soon as it appears on the other along the Sankuru river, are tree habitations described by Dr. Wolfe, where the natives live in huts built among the branches to escape the river floods. It was in great clearings made in these forests that Kund and Tappenbeck discovered some of the most notable villages yet found in of drawing in, heading and cutting off goes These villages are even more interesting groove, just wide enough for it, but too than the street town in the more sparcely narrow to let the head through. Thus we timbered regions south of them, which were regarded as very wonderful when they were first discovered by Wissmann. Beneath is a revolving cylindrical file. The HAM AND EGG LOAF.—Chop remnants of cold boiled ham, two cupfuls after it is chopped. Add an equal portion of rolled or crushed cracker and one egg, well beaten, one teaspoonful of Worcester sauce, and one tablespoonful of melted butter, and a little salt. Mix well, and pack into a round baking powder box, or empty spice box, and bake half an hour. When cold, turn it out and it can be sliced for the table.
