

The gorgeous sun,
Resplendent in effulgence
And exuberant magnificence,
Revolving in ethereal space
Among its grand compeers,
Was fashioned countless ages since,
And now is guided,
By immortal love.

Love and wisdom
Are the twins of Paradise.
The perfect union
In celestial eminence.

O it is thine, imperial Love,
Divine in birth and reared in Heaven,
Every worthy heart to rule
And every lustrous star!

Souls of deep endurance meet
With sweet affinity
In souls of wondrous purity,
And in their admiration soar
Above the stars.

Man and woman bound in love,
Spurning tinsels
Of the trivial world,
Uniting love and wisdom,
