THE BOOT AND SHOE TRADE.

T the present time there is but limited demand, and buyers are acting with unusual caution This is one partly to the fact that there are serious accumulations of old slocks throughout the country which require to be worked off, even at a sacrifice, and also to the backwarkness of the farmers in marketing their crops, they, as a rule, having looked for better prices later in the season. But although usually this slackness in demand would be cause of regret, at present it is rather a subject of congratulation, owing to the position into which manufacturers have been thrown by the strike of the "St. Crispins," and gives them time to gradually replace their old hands with new ones. This has ben a matter of greater case than it would have been some years ago when less, and less perfect muchinery was used, by which now so much work is done.

That the strikers have had no just cause for their action we cannot but think, and it seems anything but likely that they will attain the ends proposed to themselves. There was, no doubt, some cause for just complaint in the old "Team" system, by which sub-contractors obtained a large share of the earnings which should have gone to the men who actually did the work. But the strike was organized and sustained chiefly by these master "Teamsters," who really had no cause of complaint, and to whose benefit any advance in wages would really accrue. We think it robable that the strikers, -such of them as have not left the city,-will have to come to the terms offered by the manufacturers.

THE LEATHER TRADE.

Seymour, M. H. Ar's & Kickpetrick N. S. Whitmer.

HE trade of the city has been very dull during the "strike," but as most of the employees have returned to work there is rather more inquiry for stock, but no activity. Prices have undergone no particular change, nor is there any very heavy stocks of curried leather in market.
