Have you thought of Lennox.

College itself. and deepen under the influence of living Theological Study, and then the Student men, and of the great departed, who, being may be examined by the Bishop, who, if he among his fellow students and love them the Holy Office, proceeds to ordain him a none the less because in Lecture Room and Deacon in the Church of God. Play-ground they are his rivals; again he will begin to see friendly faces looking at of a life at Lennoxville how gradual is the him from old books and inviting him preparation of a student from the time surely not without success, to take some interest in them and in the truths they teach. Thus three years will pass by, time hardly ever hanging heavily on our student's hands, and the daily round of his regular life-breakfast, Chapel, Lectures, Dinner, Afternoon Lecture, Chapel, Private Study—will never be monotonous. And in due course the day will come when he will he entitled to wear, we hope with honour, his Bachelor's hood. But during these first three years he will learn that he may be Quebec, which should not take an interest

Church is sorely in need of men to give their services to her people, owing to the wide area which each of her Clergy has to cover single handed. Our Student will For nearly fifty years young men have long to give help in this field, and being been passing into and out of Lennoxville. found diligent in his studies will, in his Here the Diocese of Quebec educates her second or third year, be admitted to the children and specially prepares those who College Brotherhuod of Lay Readers, and are called to serve our Lord as the Shep- under the sanction of the Bishop will help herds of His Flock. To the life at Lennox- any Clergyman who stands in need of such ville of these last the writer would draw assistance. And now, although perhaps attention. Let us try to trace the steps of still residing in the College, the Student is, one whom the Spirit has influenced to give as a Reader, under the direction of the himself up to the five years of training Professor of Pastoral Theology, and attends required to be undergone by Candidates the fortnightly meetings for Prayer and for Holy Orders. He will need, to begin Reading of the Scriptures known as the with, to apply himself to the study of those Brotherhood meetings; he is also hencesubjects which he is expected to have some forth allowed to take his turn in reading acquaintance with before he can enter on the Lessons in Chapel, and at the close of his course at Bishop's College, this he can his third year, and in some cases before, either do at home or by taking what is he passes from the College to the Divinity called "the preparatory year" at Bishop's House, and begins to lead a life of more When he is ready, he will strict preparation for the Holy Profession become a matriculated student and will he has in view. From the time when he attend the regular lectures in the subjects enters the Divinity House he had to attend required for a degree, and it is probably in Prayers in that House at 7.45 a.m., 12.50 the first year, if not in the first few months p.m. and 10 p.m. in addition to the of his residence in College that he will Chapel Services, whilst every Weduesday form those habits which will contribute and Friday evening addresses are given at the largely to his success or failure in after 10 o'clock Service. It might be thought by life. When he enters the College doors one unaccustomed to so many stated hours he sees directly opposite him the Library of Prayer, that they would be found irk-door, and above him he hears the tramp of some and might become formal and so many feet and the sound of merry voices, worse than useless. On the contrary, they and the value of his life to the Church will are a great relief, and by keeping us conlargely depend henceforth on his finding tinually reminded of the Presence of God, the true proportion between work and they point to the end of all work and so play. Supposing him to find this propor- keep us on the one hand from idleness, and tion we may predict for him five happy and on the other from a too engrossing interest profitable years. His character will expand in our books. Two years are thus spent in dead, yet speak; he will make new friends deems him satisfactory and well fitted for

It will be seen from the above sketch when he receives his first call to work in the Lord's Vineyard to the time when, Holy Orders being conferred on him, he is enabled to go about his Father's business in his Father's strength. May some of our readers be led to turn this matter over in their minds and to consider whether it is not in their power either themselves to go, or to send others to Lennoxville to be trained or the service of Almighty God.

There is not a home in our Province of useful by doing other work than that need- in this great matter. There is not a home ed for his degree, he will find that the in this Province which should grudge
