Mr. Speaker: That is not a question of privilege. If I am required to make a ruling, I suggest to the hon. member that he has perhaps a very legitimate question which might have been asked today or could be asked tomorrow. It might have been asked today if I had had an opportunity to recognize the hon. gentleman on a supplementary question. Perhaps it would have been easier. If the hon. member had caught my eye, I would have recognized him. He has now asked the question and he can assume he will get a reply in due course.

Mr. Trudeau: Perhaps I can answer the question in part today.

Mr. Speaker: Order, please. Perhaps this is the wish of the House. However, I have made a ruling that there is no question of privilege, and we have gone beyond the question period. I think that this could wait until tomorrow.

Mr. MacLean: I rise on a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker: I apologize to the hon. member for Malpeque but I believe there is another question of privilege or point of order, or some point.

Mr. Alkenbrack: I also rise briefly on a question of privilege to point out that the roster system, as established by the Prime Minister—and I wish to make this point while he is still in his seat so his attention will be directed toward it—is inoperative and defunct. I asked a question originally intended for the Minister of Transport, who was unavoidably absent from the chamber, so I directed the question to his parliamentary secretary, the hon. member for Quebec East. Apparently he is not present either, so I received no response to my question which was one of vital and national interest to all members of the House, and particularly to many members on the government benches.

Some hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Alkenbrack: Similarly, my colleague, the hon. member for Cardigan, asked a question concerning marine transport and ferry service. There was no one present to answer his question. My question related to the reported cessation of the CNR passenger service between the capital and Toronto. Both questions are of vital interest to many members. The roster system, as proven, is not giving us service.

Some hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Speaker: This might be a legitimate grievance, but again I hesitate to say that there is a question of privilege. Perhaps it is more of a point of order or a grievance which might be raised by the hon. member at the appropriate time. But I suggest to the hon. member that this is not a question of privilege.

Business of the House BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

WEEKLY STATEMENT

Mr. MacLean: Before orders of the day are called, I would ask the acting government House leader whether he would make the usual statement regarding government business for the week ahead.

Mr. Macdonald (Rosedale): Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Some hon. Members: Oh, no, not that again.

Mr. Bell: Here goes the summer.

Mr. Macdonald (Rosedale): It is obvious that I have returned by popular request.

Now that I have the lively interest of hon. members, may I draw their attention to yesterday's Hansard at pages 6314 and 6315 which incorporate a special order with regard to the sittings of the House commencing next week and for the two following weeks.

Mr. Lewis: One following week.

Mr. Macdonald (Rosedale): Yes. The business will be as follows: tomorrow, next Monday, Tuesday evening and Wednesday, if not passed before, we will take government order No. 53, the Canada Development Corporation, government order No. 71, the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act, and government order No. 75, amendments to the Judges Act.

Under the order just mentioned, Tuesday will be an opposition day under the auspices of the NDP, culminating in a confidence vote at or about 6 p.m., and on Thursday, and on Friday, again if necessary, we will take government order No. 61, the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Mr. Crouse: I wonder if I might ask the acting House leader whether the real House leader is just having a well earned rest after the defeat in Central Nova.

Mr. Speaker: Orders of the day.

GOVERNMENT ORDERS

BUSINESS OF SUPPLY

ALLOTTED DAY S.O. 58—ALLEGED FAILURE OF THE GOVERNMENT TO ESTABLISH PROGRAMS TO PROVIDE FULL EMPLOYMENT

Mr. Louis-Roland Comeau (South Western Nova) moved:

That this House records its deep concern upon reviewing the government's continuing repudiation of its duty to establish full employment programs, and the consequent failure by the government to establish programs and policies which will give young Canadians the opportunity to enter the labour force.
