Funeral of Late Commissioner Rees Was Impressive Ceremony.

Territorial Council Sends Message of Condolence From London.

At an early hour yesterday aftermoon the rank and file of the Salvation Army in Toronto gathered quietly at the Army Temple to attend the functal service of their late commissioner. David M. Rees. Colonel Gaskin conducted the service, which was remarkable in its simplicity and lack of ceremony. A few short words were feelingly spoken by the brother officers of the late commander, telling of their relations with him and bearing testimony to his open-hearted service to humanity during the last thirty-five years. "His greatness," declared Colonel Gaskin. "was because of his goodness, his pleasant personality, his optimism and his never-failing confidence in the innate good in every optimism and his never-failing confidence in the innate good in every man. We should do well to follow his footsteps, even as he followed Christ." The massed bands from a position beyond the group of officers on the platform softly played those selections dear to the heart of every Christian.

When the solemn exercises were when the solemn exercises were completed, the casket, draped with army banners, was borne by fellow-officers from its bank of flowers to Albert street. Led by the bearers of the army standards, the cortege moved glowly off in two sections.

At the open grave in the army plot

Mount Pleasant Cemetery another simple but impressive service was held before the remains were lowered held before the remains were lowered to their last rest. Here a most pathetic, touch was added by the presence of Master Cecil and little Edith Rees, who, with bowed heads, heard the last rites pronounced ever the body of their father, whose loss they perhaps cannot yet fully appreciate. Colonel Gaskin pronounced the committal and Mrs. Brigadier Taylor offered up a prayer for the safety and future well-being of the two little territorial commanders and chief secretaries assembled in council with the general in London. It reads as follows: "We are with you in spirit as you place the body of your beloved commander by the side of his partner in life and death. egotiations are in progress to secure the Iroquois Hotel at the head of Main street for the purpose of erecting a union station for the Canadian Pacific. Grand Trunk and Lake Erie and Northern Railways.

It is said that the C.P.R. is now in ontrol of the Lake Erie and Northern Railway, and according to rumers this new line will be used as a connecting line between the C.P.R. main line which now passes thru the northern part of the town and the Michigan Central line, which it is also said the C.P.R. is endeavoring to acquire. Such a connection would shorten the mile-age of the fast trains from Montreal and Toronto for Chicago. It is figured that if such a connection is in view the junction with the Michigan Central will take place about Waterford.

George Bernhart, owner of the Iroquois Hotel, admitted that there had been preliminary negotiations on the part of the C.P.R. to buy the pro-perty. A survey of the land has been made. The site is in the heart of the

RHODES AVE. CHURCH WILL BE IMPROVED

Rhodes Avenue Baptist Church is to be transformed from a frame to a brick edifice. The ladies' aid and Baptist young peoples' societies have pledged themselves to raise the money for the brick and other material. The men of the congregation will contribute their share largely in the form of labor during the summer evenings and Sat-urday afternoons. Rev. A. A. Kelley, pastor of the Rhodes Avenue Church describes this method of constructing a brick church as an excellent example of applied Christianity.

Synod and Board of Education Agree on Danforth School

TOUCH HIGH FIGURES

New Public School and Technical School Sites Are Finally Purchased.

The Anglican Synod and the board of education have at last got together on the Danforth avenue school sites. C.P.R. Said to Be Negotiating on the Danforth avenue school sites. both parties have signed up in a deal for 12% acres, one block north of Danforth avenue, at a price of $153,-000. Only the legal formalities need to be arranged.

> The price of $12,000 an acre, or $50 a foot, constitutes a high record for bloc property in the new east end, and to many who are unacquainted with the strides made in the east end, will probably be a shock. The land is one and a half miles north of Queen and two and a half miles east of Yonge.

The property will house a new public school, and the eastern branch of the technical school. The structures will likely cost $700,000. It is expected that with the development of the Ashbridge's Bay factory district, the eastern branch will become as important as the main technical school now building on Harbord street.

When the negotiations for school sites were first began by the board of education with the Anglican Synod, which retains great blocks of land north of Danforth, the city offered $12,000 an acre for about 12 acres, being along the east side of Greenwood avenue and extending north from Danforth avenue. The synod objected to selling this, the only reason, it has just been found out, being that the church was against the making of a large frontage on Danforth into an unproductive school yard. It was felt that if this portion was not used by business buildings, business in the district would be adversely affected. It is the same argument that is used against the planting of bank buildings on good corners.

The narties at length settled on two on good corners.

The parties at length settled on two squares, extending from Leslie street to Greenwood avenue, and which will be the second blocks north of Danforth in the subdivision now being plotted by the church.

industry, but his previous record was perfectly good, and his term of imprisonment was greater than that in a number of cases in Great Britain, where life imprisonment was commuted.

In the old country, since 1882, there have been some fifteen sentences to life imprisonment for offences similar to this one. In these cases the accused were convicted not only of destruction of property, but also of treason felony. Their sentences were commuted after they had served periods ranging from eight to about fifteen years. Nine of them served periods of actual detention less than that of Dillon, and none was detained for a period equal to his, counting the four years which he earned for good behavior. At the time of his release Dillon and his accomplice, John Nolan, were the oldest sane prisoners in Kingston Penitentiary in number of years served. He is now 64 and broken in health and spirit.

Within half an hour of each other the two government lighters recently completed by Polson's Iron Works, departed yesterday on the first iap of their long journey to Port Nelson, by way of the St. Lawrence River and Hudson Bay.

These small vessels, which are in the neighborhood of 400 tons each, will be used by the government in conveying cargoes to and from the larger freighters soon to call at Port Nelson. Manned by government crews and carrying cargoes of steel cranes and steam shovels for work in the north, they expect to complete the first half of their journey and dock at Sydney, N.S., in three weeks.

At the meeting of local three last night the auditors reported that the bond and guarantee company had reimbursed the union for the total amount, and the painters were never in better financial standing. Organizer Woodrow is said to have considerably augmented the number of members.

The following officers were elected: President, John Marshall; financial secretary, R. Brewer; recording secretary, James Stevenson; treasurer, Mr. Leslie; warden, J. Carrick; trustees, H. Pauline and B. Cook.

JURY EXONERATES TROLLEY CAR MEN

Accidental death was the verdict brought in last night at the inquest brought in last night at the inquest into the death of Yosang Erling, who fell off a trolley car. The motorman and conductor were found blameless. The evidence of witnesses showed that the man, who was a stranger in the city, had boarded the moving car, as it proceeded down York street, and that while still upon the running board, changed his mind, stepped off backward and fell, sustaining injuries from which he subsequently died.

He was removed to the General Hospital in the police and the state of the desired the state of the ambulance, but died there ten minutes after being admitted.

Editor World: Having noticed in your columns several letters on the question of an up-to-date temperance hotel in this city, please allow me space for a few words on the subject.

There is no doubt that the tide of temperance on the whole of the Amarican Continent is rising, and it will be at flood just as soon as woman suffrage is enacted, a modified extension of which may probably become law within five years, when good-bye to the bars.

It is an admitted fact that Toronto's first-class hotel accommodation, especially at rush times, which are very frequent nowadays, is very inadequate, and doubtless a well-conducted temperance hotel in close proximity to the new Union Station would be well patronized.

In all the leading cities of England and Scotland temperance hotels are numercus, and especially in the case of family business are much preferred. If the Gooderhams could build a King Edward, surely the temperance party, among whom are so many millionaires, ought easily to be able to erect such a monument to their principles as a first-class temperance hotel, and dignify by the attractive sign of "The Queen Mary."

TEMPERANCE HOTEL.

Ward Four Liberal-Conservative Association will hold their sixth annual picnic and excursion to Queenston Heights on Wednesday, July 22. The program of sports includes a large number of events, besides which addresses will be given by Toronto members of provincial and Dominion parliaments. Tickets will be obtainable on the day of the excursion at the corner of King and Yonge streets; adults $1, children 50c. A large gathering is expected. The King's typist in the secretary's department at Buckingham Palace is a most accomplished young woman. She speaks and writes French and German as fluently as English, and is an exceptionally quick shorthand writer and typist. It is her special duty to attend to the sovereign's correspondence, the letters being generally directed to her by Lord Stamfordham. She has traveled extensively, and was among the staff who accompanied the King and Queen to India, and recently to Paris.

Exhibition Showing Work of Children Under Twelve, Shows Great Talent.

An exhibition, limited to the unaided work of children under twelve years opened lately in a gallery opposite and hardly a stone's throw distant from the Grand Salon of the Artistes Francais, in the Champs Elysees, Paris.

the Champs Elysees, Paris.

Altho the new exhibit is small at present, hardly over 100 canvases being exhibited, the promoters hope to establish a permanent yearly salon, while a jury has already been chosen, under the presidency of Felix Fenlon, expert head of the Bernheim gallery, to judge the entries and award medals.

The exhibitors are mostly children of artists, notably Augusta, the ten-year-old daughter of the impressionist painter, Kees VanDongen, Her landscape, in a style more classic than her father's, was sold on the opening day for $30.

The star exhibitor is Paul Raynerie, aged eleven, the son of a Paris janitar. The critics proclaim him a child genius, giving the highest praise to his work and comparing it with the customs officer. Nousseaus, also untaught, who ten years ago was despised and starving, and now, after his death, is recognized as a master, his pictures having sold for thousands of dollars.
