MASTERPIECES OF SWISS CRAFTSMANSHIP

Made and sold under the management of an American organization

THE Gruen movements, famous among horologists for their precision time-keeping, are made under American ownership in Madre-Biel, Switzerland, by a modern guild of that country's best craftsmen.

The movements are then brought to the Guild Workshop in America, at "Time Hill," Cincinnati. Here the beautiful Gruen cases are hand wrought and in them the movements adjusted and timed.

How the Gruen Pat. Wheel Construction made an accurate watch thin. The shortness of staff makes watch more durable.

When you own a watch with the name "Gruen" on the dial, you own the finest modern example of Swiss watchmaking art—with the complete service of an American organization behind it.

The Gruen Watch is obtainable only through one of 1200 Gruen jeweler agencies—the best in every locality—to whom the sale is confined. Duplicate repair parts may be had through these agencies at all times.
