of the temperance cause in the province. It was not an ordinary address, but one bristling with sharp remarks about the action of the government in preparing a very uphill fight for them in the coming referendum campaign. The report reviewed at some length the many battles fought by the temperance people in this province. She said in part:

"That a government whose Premier was a vice-president of the Ontario Alliance, and a life-long professed prohibitionist, could so play with the honest sentiments of moral reformers and the friends and supporters of nearly half a century, took the heart out of us. We looked in each others and the friends and supporters of nearly half a century, took the heart out of us. We looked in each others and the friends and supporters of faces with dismay, and felt that choking sensation which tries to conceal a bitter disappointment. But we said:

"Perhaps we can secure improved conditions, and the thing may not be as bad as it looks! And so every lawful, courteous and reasonable means was taken to modify the terms and lend us the courage of a hope at least.

"However, the temperance forces rallied in the Pavilion, some 1500 men and women (more men than yomen). taken to modify the terms and lend us the courage of a hope at least.

"However, the temperance forces rallied in the Pavilion, some 1500 men and women (more men than women) representing different parts of Ontario, eager and zealous to give the prohibition cause an onward push.

All came from the town of Prilzo, on the border of Macedonia, and of Prilzo, on the border of Macedonia, and told the customs officials that the terrible massacres by the Turks have made life unbearable in their native country.

Association, and every hotel man from Cornwall to Fort William, had promised to contribute in the coming elections, as the price for a loaded referendum, doubtfully constitutional and unquestionably unjust. We protested and argued by deputation, but instead of less bricks to make and better straw to do it with we were ordered to make bricks without straw and instead of modified conditions, we were shown how much harder was the hand that imposed the burden. This was done, not only at the dictation of the liquor caucus, but by the clerical consulting physicians of a sick government, who stepped in to advise and throw around it the aegis of their moral (?) support.

"To-your tents, oh Israel! was the cry we should have raised, out we lacked a Moses, or a Joshua, to lead us: or, if he was up on the mountain getting law, his deputy in the meanbox was made to move once more Cline, Gjorjo Stojko, Jaukanlu Bozic and

Then came an address by W. P. Ferguson of Chicago, who was heard at some length on the horrors of the abuse of liquor, and stating that the time was well nigh that the governments in Canada and the United States should go to the rescue of those who suffered so much by that traffic by wiping it out of existance.
