

Mutt is Thankful He Looked Down and Not Up

By "Bud" Fisher

P. A. strikes 13 every time you fire up!

Prince Albert smashes the big joy gong whether you jam it into a jimmy pipe or roll it into an ace-high makin's cigarette, the like of which you never got next to before.

Pretty quick you forget about the chaff-brands and fire-brands! For P. A. is all there—signed, sealed, delivered!

Men everywhere smoke P. A. because it's a revelation—can't bite the tongue! The bite's cut out by a patented process. Hence, no tobacco can be like

PRINCE ALBERT

Listen: You can never tell from where you're sitting how your picture's going to look. Nor can you tell how bully P. A. is until you fire up! It's a case of "show me." We've made a "show down" for millions of men everywhere.

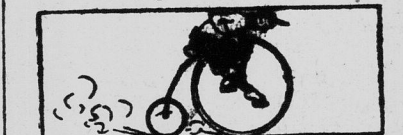

In five years Prince Albert, from a little stranger in a big land, has become the largest selling pipe and cigarette tobacco in the United States.

Got the nerve to put up the price for a tidy red tin to find out something for what ails your smokappetite?

Prince Albert is imported into Canada by wholesale dealers and is on sale, in one-eighth-pound tidy red tins, by all of the leading retail dealers.

A Dip Into The Past.

July 16, 1889, Arthur F. Hiley rode a bicycle, over roads, 161 miles in 12 hours, beating record, Great North Road, England.

We agree with him after looking at some of their records.

The fellow who pays twenty-five cents to see the home team blanketed naturally feels he didn't get a run for his money.

Gunboat Smith will meet Georges Carpentier, the French soldier. It seems a shame to put a gunboat against a lone soldier.

A guy named Helmlinger had his name changed to Miller the other day, and now he is happy.

Welsh remarks that he will run Ritchie to earth, and those who saw the Welsh-Cross battle will agree that he is well qualified in this department.

After being defeated by Freddie Welsh, Leach Cross is going back to dentistry. Instead of knocking out teeth, he is going to be nice about it and pull them.

Young Bob Fitz refuses to fight, proving that he has all the instincts of a regular champion.

Harry Heber, I. A. C. swimmer of Chicago, established a world's record for the 150-yard back stroke. His time was 1:49 4-5.

WALKING A TIGHTROPE.

You may have thought that the squirrel was just showing off when he walked the length of the telephone cable, all the length of the alley, and you may have classed him with the sort of foolish people who have walked wires over Niagara Falls. The fact was that the squirrel wanted his breakfast, and what was much more important, his wife wanted her breakfast.

The snow was so deep that the squirrel would only have succeeded in burying himself if he had tried to walk through it and it was packed so tightly down next to the ground that he could not go to his storeroom at the foot of the tree. He could not telephone to the corner grocery, because he had no telephone and he could not fly and he could not beg loudly enough to be heard.

It seemed to him that if he had been anything but a squirrel there would have been somebody to help him, but as he was a squirrel, he had to help himself and he started bravely out to do it. He walked the slippery cable all the length of the alley and found some frozen bread near a telephone pole. Then he walked back again and carried his wife's breakfast to her.

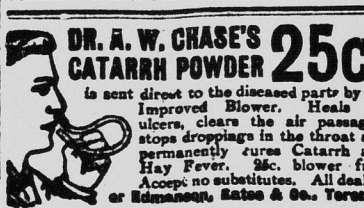

It sounds so simple and it was so difficult. His feet were cold and so stiff that they skidded. He was a fat little squirrel and every inch or so he slipped so far to one side or the other that he almost lost his balance. It had not been for his tail he never could have made it.

How that tail did work! Now, on this side, now on that, and now jerking steadily along straight above the wire. The poor tail was heavy with snow and ached with the unaccustomed exercises, but it went bravely on, balancing, correcting, catching, holding, and, indeed, fairly pushing the squirrel along the wire.

The squirrel probably thought that the wire was there for no other purpose than to afford him a passage through the air, and no doubt he had several things to say about the size of the wire and its slippery condition and the general lack of accommodation afforded by public service corporations, entirely forgetting that if the wire had not been there he and his wife would have had no breakfast and probably no lunch or dinner.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.
