"For though in the quiet evening You may give me the kiss of peace, Yet it might be That never for me The pain of the heart should cease,

How many go forth in the morning That never come home at night, And hearts have broken. For harsh words spoken.

That sorrow can ne'er set fight. "We have careful thoughts for the stranger, And smiles for the some time guest, But oft for 'our own,'

The bitter tone, Though we love 'our own' the best, Ab ! lips with the curve impatient, Ah ! brow with that look of scorn. Twere a cruel fate.

Major Meddlefield had had some idea an elderly gentleman might safely indulge in to-wards a pretty shop-girl ; but her pure oval 'face and serious eyes somehow kept him at a distance. Even Harry, said dog that he was, addressed her as if she had been a duchess "Have you ready-made shirts?" he saked. Yee, she had; and the followed a long discus-row ones, lines and numlin, during which Major Meddlefield thought the pretty girl prettier than ever.
