The florists did a great business on St. Lurday and Saturday evening. It was interesting in the country market on Saturday evening to see the people gathered around the flowers in pots exposed for sale there, and a lot of people exchanged their quarter dollars for pots of pretty hyacinths or other plants in bloom.

of their class who are in evidence every day.

George Burney of Montreal celetrated Easter by having a roaring old time on Britain street, and the police, acting up to the rules of their religion, saw that he was a stranger and took him in. He stood up like a little man this morning and pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness, for which he was fined four dollars.

In company with George on the bench was Maud Lester—a dark beauty—and a frequent visitor to the court. It is only just to say that Maud's head was not turned by any new Easter hat, for she is very conservative in her manner of dress, and does not believe in putting off the old until the season is further advanced. Maud was asked to pay eight dollars, not exactly as a sufficient reward for her amusement, but simply as a remembrance of the police court — Lest'er forget.

Edward Manning had indulged to police court — Lest'er forget, Lest'er forget.

Edward Manning had indulged to freely in liquor that as usual had been purchased before seven o'clock on Saturday night. He so far forgot himself as to use very profane language, but this morning was sorry for having done so, and explained that he was so drunk as to be totally unconscious of what he was doing. In some of these cases a remarkable exhibition of self-denial is seen, for often it happens that the victims of an unquenchable thirst do not become drunk until very late in the night or early in the morning. This shows great self-control. A man who can carry a bottle of liquor in his pocket from before seven o'clock until late at night and not get drunk, enduring bravely the agony from thist, ought not to be considered altogether incurable. Of course the liquor is always purchased before seven o'clock-there can be no doubt on that point.

John Matthews, a descendant of Lo, the poor Indian, whom everyone has read about, had, after the manner of his race, become thoroughly intoxicated on a few drinks of fire-water. His thonor said that in a case like this it was far more important for the police to discover who had given or sold the liquor to the Indian than to arrest the poor, weak-minded victim.

Edward McCausland, for being drunk on Charlote street, was fined the usual $8 or twenty days, and Frank Gaugh, who had left a deposit of $8 in the police station, failed to appear. His deposit was declared forfeited.

Howard Prebble, who was arrested on Friday, charged by Capt. Tufts of the schooner Temperance Bell with stealing a quantity of rope, was today discharged, the prosecutor having failed to appear.

"Pil resign in your favor and do all in my power to secure your election to the council," said an alderman to another citizen this morning.
"Look here," said the citizen, "I wouldn't take it if there was a thousand a year in it."
"There you are," said the alderman, "and yet there is fault found with the men who do run. You say you are too busy. How many good business men are there in the town who are not busy?"

busy?"

The citizen admitted that he did not know very many such. And then they laughed and separated.

COBURG STREET CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The series of meetings which have been held by Dr. Ray for the past three weeks closed last evening, with a very carnest appeal to the unconverted by Dr. Ray, and special singing by Miss Murray. One young lady made the good confession, and in company with a young lad received the ordinance of baptism. At communion service in the morning Dr. Ray extended the right hand of fellowship to three young laddles and three young men.

OUR OLD FRIEND BOADICEA.

All who remember the poem Boadicea, in the school reade, will apprepare the following composition on the subject. It was written by a St. John pupil.

"Boadicea was a queen and the Romans used to beat her. Sought with a contempt manner, and advice her priests. The priests of ancient Briton used to worshipped under an oak. The priests said Princess if our eyes weep for the wrong things we done. Tis because anger fears our tongues. Other Romans shall come careless of a solder's name. The armed men shall not win the prize but the musical art will led the way, then the descendants that comes from the forest armed with guns. Caesar never knew the descendants would rule. The minstrels prophetic words full with celestial fire. He was bending as he played the music. He said it sounded sweet but was a auful instrument. Boadicea felt as a queen, she went to battle and fought and died. They come beside there enemy but the brutal fellows has know mercy for her."

The gem of this composition is in the paraphrase of the sweet the chords janitor of the Mechanics' Institute. His wife and three young children live in a little house, No. 41, on Richmond street, and are in poor circumstances. They were dependent spon what Foster sent them and are now left without anything. Foster had never been at ees before, nor had he done much cooking, but as opportunities were not very plentiful this spring he shipped as cook on the Wendall Burpee.

MASS MEETING. MASS MEETING.

The following programme has been arranged for the meeting to be held comorrow night by the St. John Local Union of Christian Endeavor in Centenary church:—Song, service, orchestra selection; scripture reading and prayer, Rev. J. Read; solo, G. Herbert Mayer; orchestra selection; address jof welcome to Wm. Shaw by Rev. T. F. Fotheringham; reply and address by Mr. Shaw; solo, Miss Jennie Trueman; consecration service, conducted by Rev. P. J. Stackhouse.
