STORY OF FAMOUS "DUCK AND DRAKE HORSE" IS RE-TOLD

Exchanged for a Duck and a Drake and new owner sold the horse to Gov't purchasers for $150.

Kentville, N. S., Aug. 12.—Harvey is a good kind of a fellow: He must have made well on his horses today, because he gave me ten dollars." This is what Dr. Chipman, the government veterinary who passed upon horses presented for sale at Kingston last year for the use of the Canadian troops bound overseas, told John F. Cropley of Kingston, one of the witnesses who testified at today's sitting of the Royal Commission now here investigating the purchase of horses in this county. Harvey is the Aylesford butcher who sold four unsound horses to the government officials at Kingston last year at a fine profit.

He himself denied yesterday and again today that he had paid ten dollars to anyone in order to facilitate the sale of his horses, but Cropley stated on oath that the above was exactly as he could remember what Dr. Chipman had told him after the sale at Kingston.

Arthur Veniot, who drove Harvey home from the sale testified that Harvey on the way home told him he had offered Chipman ten dollars. In the course of his evidence today Cropley testified that he had told McKay, the government buyer, at the sale at Kingston, that he was buying the wrong kind of horses, but that McKay bought these horses just the same. Cropley also said this morning that he knew of one case in which a horse that had been rejected by Chipman had been purchased by McKay. In the afternoon the witness modified this by saying that he didn't know whether or not Chipman had made a second examination of the horse.

"He said he thought Foster was doing a good thing for the country," was what John Graves testified.

Profit of Seventy Dollars

This was in reference to what Graves had heard Abner Woodworth his grandfather who sold a fifteen year old horse that was sprung in the mess and "foundered" tell Spurgeon Selfridge. Graves testified that he heard Woodworth tell Selfridge that he bought the horse for fifty dollars and sold it to the government buyers for one hundred and thirty. This corresponds with testimony given by Selfridge before the Public Accounts Committee at Ottawa.

Woodworth on the stand today said that he didn't think he had told this to Selfridge. He had bought the horse for seventy dollars and sold it for one hundred and forty.

"It was none of his (Selfridge's) business," said Woodworth. "All this fuss over ten dollars for a rotten horse," said Mr. Thompson, counsel for the commission.

Ingram Bobby, another witness today, testified that he had taken a sound young horse to the sale and had told McKay, the government buyer, about her. McKay did not see the horse nor offer any price for her.

When Bobby told McKay that he had at home an eleven year old horse suffering from the heaves, the buyer told him to send home and get her. Bobby did so and sold her to McKay.

Many cases of horses absolutely unfit for military service which were purchased by the government representatives were told of today.

A mare which had to be milked on the way to the sale and again before leaving on the train for Valcartier, a horse that was given "something out of a bottle" and afterwards kicked about in the barn, these are some of the specimens.

The more recent history of the famous horse that at one time in its career was traded for two ducks and a drake and which was sold to the government officials at Kingston last year for ninety dollars was detailed today.

Charles Thimlan, farmer of Dugan's Road said he once owned the famous duck and drake horse. He sold this horse to Hal Daniels. This horse had an accident while in his possession.

"Was he almost dead when you sold him?" "Well, pretty well onto it."

"What did you sell him for?" "I sold him for five dollars to Daniels."

"Cash?" "No, sir, I took ducks and a drake instead."

The horse was twenty-four years old. When he sold him to Mr. McKay at Kingston for one hundred and fifty dollars. The horse was about fourteen years old, had swollen hind legs and forelegs were sprung. The horse had a cough.

Mr. Morse sold two horses at Kingston to McKay. Received one hundred and seventy-five dollars for his own horse and one hundred and twenty-five for his father's horse. Could not tell age of his father's horse. His father's horse had no trouble with her feed when they had it. He knew Dr. Church, saw him in the barn with a bottle but could not tell what was in it. Did not know whether it was dope or not. Saw Dr. Church put the bottle in the horse's mouth. He knew it was Church. The horse kicked the end of the barn out afterwards.

The commission then adjourned until tomorrow morning.
