

Their lips should be sewn shut

You know how sometimes you look at an old photograph of yourself and you would rather have not been reminded? After listening to The Go-Go's new album, Go-Go's Greatest, that is exactly how I felt.

Musically speaking, the early eighties are a time I would really rather forget. The Go-Go's Greatest was like a photo album dedicated to my ugly years.

The collection is comprised of Go-Go's tunes from 1981, to the present. The majority of the fourteen tracks come from '81 and '84. Thankfully, only one song was a new release.

"How Much More" was, strangely enough, exactly what I was thinking by the time I had reached it, the second last song on the album.

Other greatest hits included "I'm the Only One" (of which all I can say is "hew!"), "Vacation" (I need one now as much as they did then), "Get Up and Go" (a greatest hit I don't remember but I really wish they would), and "We Got the Beat".

The new release "Cool Jerk" is as near to a rap song as the Go-Gos can come. It reaffirms for me that although they may have had the beat in 1981, they definitely no longer do. On the whole I would have to say that this is a collection of memories no one needs to be subjected to. When they said in 1981, "Our Lips are Sealed" they should have stuck to their word.

Love and Emotion has style

 Love and Emotion
 A&M Records

Unlike other tapes I have had the pleasure of listening to, I really liked Stevie B's Love and Emotion.

My first impression was based on the fact that his last name started and ended with the same letter. I expected to hear the same melody only with different words attached to the song. But I've always been one to admit when I am wrong. — I was wrong.

Stevie B has style. His album is filled with a number of different types of songs, ranging from ballads, to reggae, to pop mixed with funk.

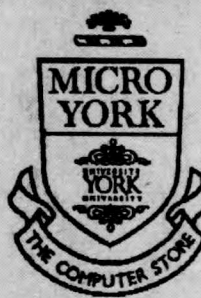

Songs such as "Love and Emotion" and "Facts of Love" leaves you wanting more.

Both of these songs have a steady dance beat, yet still manage to blend in with the rest of Stevie B's softer side.

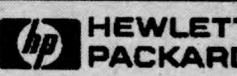

After listening to the album, it's easy to understand why he chose the title Love and Emotion. Stevie B's ballads ooze with both of these sentiments. Although these sentiments seem to be the main ingredients in soft rock, these are not typical formula songs. The only similarity between his songs is that he sings all of them.

Each song has its own style. "Because I Love You" is a combination of Stevie B's diversified style. He blends together soft rock with a steady dance beat that proves to be quite successful.

Stevie B does not stick to one formula. He experiments and because of this factor, Love and Emotion is one of the better albums, released this year.
