of some of its experiments in vivisection. I do not imagine there is a concern in the world which has rendered humanity a greater service than that particular institution. However, Mr. Rockefeller's latest gift, and one to which Mr. Burrows has referred, is not to the Rockefeller Institute, but, in the most part, to the medical faculties of universities. Canada, for example, has come in for a gift of over $1,000,000, for the purpose of promoting medical science. I think my friendship with young Mr. Rockefeller had a good deal to do with securing this portion of the Rockefeller donation for Canada, and I am heartily glad that it has been obtained, because our colleges are greatly in need of this kind of assistance.

As you say, there are two points of view respecting vivisection. I believe we cannot be too humane, but there are times when it would appear that sacrifice is the law of progress, in material, as well as in spiritual, things, and its exercise with judgment becomes necessary.

I am glad to know that you are feeling so much stronger. I am sure, with the approach of spring and summer, you will find new life and a corresponding increase of joy in the things thereof.
