A DOLL'S HOUSE.

How to Make a Pretty Toy Out of a Wooden Box.

A fascinating doll house that was a wooden box a month ago is about three feet long and one and one-half feet wide. It cost a quarter of a dollar. The lid was put on hinges, and when the box is stood upon end it forms the door or side of the house that can be set wide open. Two shelves are fitted in for floors, and four holes are cut for windows on each floor. These are filled in with window glass found about the house. The outside of the house is painted a warm yellow, with white around the windows. The walls are covered with old blue cartridge paper, with a frieze of pale yellow roses and olive pattern on the second story. The wall paper was found in the house, too, but books and samples are often given away by dealers in wall paper. If paper is not to be had without an outlay, cover the walls with pale tinted silesia or cambric, with a little frill at the top. Fasten to the wall with tacks. Then add little curtains of lace or cheesecloth and make rugs or carpets of bits of old carpet or heavy cloth. A piece of plush of olive or cardinal, with a wide border of another dark color, would make a rich looking car-

A Curious Mexican Tree. In Mexico there is a curious tree called the maguey which furnishes a needle and thread all ready for use. A thorn grows on the tip of each green leaf of the tree that just before using must be carefully drawn from its sheath. In getting out this slender thorn a thread slowly unwinds of a strong fiber which may be pulled out to a considerable length. Imagine how convenient it would be if a boy got a hole in his trousers or a girl tore her dress on a prickly bush growing by the roadside to reach up and find a needle and thread all ready to repair the damage!

Whiskers, four-year-old Birdie's little dog, had been following the older children to school, and he kept up the practice in spite of their various methods of punishment. One evening when the children came home, with the dog following them, Birdie looked up and said seriously:

Presently, however, they will notice that this omission makes a dark shade around the mouth. For such a mark a fresh lemon squeezed into a small quantity of glycerin and applied around the mouth will prove efficient.

Unfortunately too many women complain of a growth of hair on their mouths, which is fatal to beauty from the American standpoint. It is pleasant to know that electrolysis has been brought to such perfection and can now be performed so cheaply that it is
