SETTLED THE CASE

Thomas T. C. Green, of Detroit, made his appearance at the Police Court this morning for the purpose of clearing off an old charge against him.

Last April a summons was made out for him for selling tobacco to minors. At that time Mr. Green conducted a small bakery on Wellington street near the market. He left the city before the summons was served on him and has since been serving as a cook on a boat going out from Detroit.

He pleaded guilty to the charge but claimed he did not know at the time that he was breaking the law. He wanted it straightened up and so paid a fine of $10 and costs, $12.50 in all.

BROKE QUARANTINE

Mrs. Theo. Le Rocque, of this city, who has been in quarantine at Port Stanley for the past three weeks, surreptitiously left the place and arrived in this city on Monday last and immediately went to the boarding house on Stanley avenue where her husband, who is a laborer in the city, has been staying. L. J. Motherstill, M. H. O. of Port Stanley, promptly notified Health Officer Dr. W. R. Hall of her escape and advised him that she had been quarantined for diphtheria, and as soon as she was located Inspector Mounter was sent to the house.

The house, together with the woman's clothes, were thoroughly disinfected. This morning the police received a warrant for her arrest.

Henry Darr located the family this morning on Colborne street and this afternoon he served them with the request for their appearance in Port Stanley.

BUGLERS WON

The Bugle Band of the Regiment accompanied the Chatham contingent to the Paris Old Boys' Re-union. A feature of the program was a contest for bugle bands, and word has just been received that the locals were adjudged worthy of first prize.

Their victory is a splendid one when it is considered the excellent corps against which they had to compete—the Queen's Own Rifles Bugle Band, and those of the 48th Highlanders, the Royal Grenadiers, the 13th Regiment of Hamilton, the 19th of St. Catharines and the Dufferin Rifles of Brantford being present.

It is likely that the boys had to blow some to win the trophy and it would be quite pardonable for Chathamites to also blow a little over it.

Another Case of "Near a Whole City Full, Home He Had None"

The Funeral of the Late Guseppe Nanni a Very Sad Affair—Attended by a Very Few

The Italian laborer, Guseppe Nanni, killed on the C. P. R. track near Ringold, was buried last night. The interment was delayed until this time owing to the Township of Raleigh refusing to assume the expense. Further delay being impossible the C. P. R. took charge of the arrangements. The accident occurred Tuesday, and the mutilated remains had been lying in the Ringold Freight shed, from from which place the funeral took place last night.

Of times every day life reveals incidents as dramatic as those told in story, song, or play, the only difficulty being that we are prone to overlook them, thinking the field within our own range of vision yields none such and that we must look abroad for such incidents. The obsequies of this unfortunate, friendless Italian yield a situation such as was immortalized in the famous "Burial of Sir John Moore."

The cortege was followed by six fellow workmen, the interpreter and the gang boss to St. Peter's Roman Catholic church down the river. Through the silent night the pitiful procession wended its way, the immortal, twinkling stars the only witnesses. Arriving at the church door at midnight they were awaited by the somber-clad priest, behind him a background of flickering candles, barely lighting the altar. The recesses of the edifice were dark and silent—the sighing wind outside, sounding like soft murmurings from an ethereal and wraith-like presence in the dimly lit pews. Above all the solemn tones of the dark-robed priest, chanting the funeral service.

The grim ceremony concluded, the followers again shouldered the bier and preceded by a lantern, dimly glimmering, traversed the church to the burial ground. Here his fellow workmen had prepared a grave, around which the mourners grouped, just as the bier was being lowered over the rim of the rising moon peered over the horizon, spreading its silver light on the scene, the descending cascade, the swardy-faced mourners; Nanni was a field of tall corn which in the lambent light of the moon had been mistaken for a company of mourners from the shadow land, arms tossing and heads nodding sadly.

Higher the moon rose and lent its aid, through the unremembered years it has done so many victims of the shining armor of slain warriors of ancient days and the blood-stained tunics of those of more modern days. Soon the task was completed, and the little group turned reluctantly away and finally disappeared. The smiling moon rose higher and higher, and, also, finally disappeared and on the sparkling stars remained, looking down at the same time upon the father in an unknown land and the humble hut of the mother and children under far off Castilian skies.

Parsonage and Church Fire.
Glencoe, Aug. 15.—A severe thunderstorm passed over here about 1 o'clock Sunday morning, one flash destroyed the chimney of the Methodist Church, and set fire to the roof. The parsonage was struck in two places. A gentleman who was visiting at Rev. Mr. Ford's was partially stunned, as he lay in bed. Mrs. Ford, who was walking down the passage with a lamp in her hand, had a narrow escape. The concussion of the thunderbolt throwing the lamp from her hand, but happily she was uninjured. The prompt attendance of the fire brigade saved the building.

Barns at Lynedoch Struck.
Delhi, Aug. 15.—Sunday morning about 2 o'clock lightning struck the barns of Thomas Lynedoch, along with the season's crops, and a threshing machine. Loss about $3,500; insurance $2,000.

Barn and Crops Consumed.
Lanark, Aug. 15.—During a heavy electric storm Sunday morning, lightning struck the barns of Mr. Roberts, a few miles from here, and burned the building to the ground, and 1,000 bushels of this season's grain and a threshing machine.

Manslaughter is Charged.
Toronto, Aug. 15.—George Pullman, who boarded at 17 Lewis street, was arrested yesterday by P. C. Guthrie on a charge of manslaughter: "that he did slay and kill and cause the death of Thomas Mahoney." It was on the eleventh of March that Mahoney was found lying in a lane running off Lewis street by P. C. Ward. He died without regaining consciousness, and all he said was, "They have killed me this time."

An inquest was held by Coroner Young. The jury brought in a verdict that death was due to pneumonia. The arrest of Pullman is the outcome of a lot of gossip amongst the neighbors. Four youngsters, aged about 10 years, claim that before Mahoney went into Ryan's house he was in the house of Mike O'Brien, 17 Lewis street, where Pullman boarded. They claim they heard a fight going on and saw Pullman and another man beating and kicking Mahoney, and they claim that he cried for help. Pullman's partner, who is supposed to have been implicated in the assault, left town, and is now in the United States.

If ignorance were really bliss, what a lot of people would be supremely happy.

SHOULD GET A HEARING

Britishers Urged to Come Before Our Tariff Commission.

Canada Herself Has Set the Precedent—The Market of the Future For Canada's Wheat—London Globe Thinks Refusal of England to Respond to Canadian Preference May Have Far-Reaching Results.

London, Aug. 17.—(C. A. P.)—Edward Porritt, who recently toured Canada as a special correspondent for the "Commercial Intelligence," in his first deals with the approaching sessions of the Dominion tariff commission. He suggests that without delay the Associated Chamber of Commerce and the numerous chambers at the manufacturing centres of Great Britain should organize a movement for securing hearings before the tariff commission when in session.

"I am aware," says Porritt, "that the suggestion may seem a bold one, that it savours of interference on the part of the manufacturers of Great Britain with the fiscal and commercial policy of Canada, but Canada herself has quite recently set a precedent, which at once puts this objection aside."

Future of Canada.
Commenting on Prof. Mavor's recent report on the wheat production of the Northwest The London Globe says the question is, briefly, where in the future is Canada to find the chief markets for what she exports to Great Britain or the United States? Upon the answer to this depends the further question which of the two is to have the lion's share in the trade advantage resulting from Canada's development.

The refusal of England to respond to the Canadian preference and to draw her supplies increasingly from her own children can only mean an alternative scheme of trade reciprocity between Canada and the United States. Canada, with the majority of its population non-British, and United States with a foreign nation in the closest relations of commercial and material interests, will be only nominally a portion of the British Empire, and probably not even that for any long period. British democracy has the decision in its own hands. That decision, whichever way it goes, will have politically and commercially very far-reaching results.
