"THE FATAL FLOWER."

We are always more or less interested in stage stories which are constructed on lines bearing close relation to human nature as we know it, and we are anxious to see how characters of a play bear themselves through whatever varieties of fortune the dramatist has seen fit to direct their paths, and to study their relations to our own experiences. A play which deals exclusively with realism and natural characters that are drawn true to life, certainly seems to interest us and hold our attention longer than those prompted by idealism. The new play "The Fatal Flower," the latest of stage offerings by Howard Hall, which will be presented for the first time in this city to-morrow night, at the Briscoe Opera House, is a conspicuous example of that type of drama which closely adheres to the atmosphere of naturalism. The scenes of the play are laid in Washington, D. C., and all its characters are delightfully drawn. The play serves as a vehicle for the starting tour of William Walcott, and the leading role is said to be peculiarly adapted to his temperament. Mr. Walcott will be supported by Florence Roseland, who assumes the part of Marion de Yonde, and a specially selected cast of well-known players. The scenic effects are elaborate, and the dressing rich in the extreme.

"THE WALLS OF JERICHO"—ON THURSDAY, JAN. 2ND.

Alfred Sutro, author of "The Walls of Jericho," is one of the most interesting figures in the dramatic field in England to-day. His rise has been made in the last three years. He is the son of a country doctor, and was educated from London schools, and in Brussels. His father intended him for commercial life, and he developed an exceptional faculty for business. His best, however, was for literary work, and when he had assured himself of a steady income, he devoted himself to literature. He wrote a number of plays during the seven years before "The Walls of Jericho" was produced. It was first presented at the Garrick Theatre, London. It was then brought to this country and given at the Savoy Theatre, New York. It has also been produced in Holland at the Hague Theatre. Mr. Sutro's latest play, "John Glyde's Honor," produced last March by George Alexander at the St. James Theatre, the rights of which are controlled by James K. Hackett, for this country, has also met with great favor in England.

Comb Out?

Better be on the safe side. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Hair Vigor. Then do as he says. He knows what is best.

It is not recorded that any financial genius ever got his start by purchasing diamonds on the installment plan.

Is your comb telling a story, the story of falling hair? Not a pleasant story, is it? It ends badly. The story we tell is pleasant—the story of Ayer's Hair Vigor. Promptly stops falling hair, destroys dandruff, keeps the scalp healthy. Does not color the hair.
