Prices After the War.

How far prices will fall is impossible to forecast, so many factors are uncertain, says a leading Canadian journal devoted to agriculture.

It seems probable that wheat, and other grains may become for a time after the harvests of 1919 and 1920 very cheap. In due course, the prices of animals and their products ought, in that case, to follow. But experts who have been gathering information about that the birds of the world have been dependent upon the grain already withdrawn from the land during a long period of speculation and extravagance.

Storage of Potatoes.

Many have grown potatoes this year who never did so before, and consequently will be unfamiliar with the best methods of protecting the crop.

Owing to the excessive rains this autumn, potatoes in some districts have become infected with rot, and many have been harvested under unfavorable conditions. In many instances they have been stored in the cellars before being properly dried. Potatoes showing any incipient rot should not be stored with sound ones. This is especially true if there are abundant conditions of moisture, as such conditions will cause a greater activity of the fungus and, consequently, quicker rotting of the potatoes.

Potatoes should be stored in a dry and cool place as possible without freezing. The drier they can be kept the less rot will develop.

Blood Making Medicine.

Book studies for medical science to discover that the blood is the life-giving element of the body. It is known that if the blood is always abundant, rich and pure, few people would ever be ill.

It is not until the end of the 19th century that an instrument was invented for measuring the red part of the blood. Then doctors could tell how anemic a patient had become, and with medicine to make the blood the patient soon got well.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is a daily, but when, for any reason, a person is run down and can not make sufficient blood from the food to keep the body in health, the blood-making medicine is required. The simplest and very best blood-makers suitable for home use are, therefore, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When a course of these pills is taken their good effect is soon shown in an improved appetite, stronger nerves, sound digestion and an ability to master your work and enjoy leisure hours.

For women there is a prompt relief of, or prevention of ailments which make life a burden. As an all-round medicine for the cure of ailments due to weak, watery blood or medicine discovered by medical science can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail a 50-cent box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Robert Stead's New Novel

Robert J. C. Stead, in his new novel, 'The Cow Patcher,' (Toronto, the Munson Book Co., Ltd., cloth, $1.50). Has written a notable book with a Western Canadian setting. Dave P. D., the cow patcher of the story, grows to young manhood on a ranch in the foot hills, outside the influence of church or school. At eighteen he is accidentally thrown into the company of a young English girl, who enkindles in him the ambition to be somebody in the world.

With this purpose in view, young Dave leaves his ranch and goes to Toronto in a young Western desperado, and he takes a morning as a coal heaver. For a time it looks as though Dave's career would be downward instead of up, but he fortunately comes under influences which revive his ambition for self betterment.

About this time the big western real estate boom breaks out, and Dave's course is meteoric. His wealth comes quickly and goes as quickly. Following the collapse of the boom a tragedy in his love affairs sends him as an exiled man to France. In the closing chapters is found one of the highest patriotic notes struck by any author during the war.

'The Cow Patcher' is decidedly worth while. It is interesting and refreshing, and at times inspiring. It is written with all Mr. Stead's intimate knowledge of the West and skill of deflection. Through the book runs a happy vein of humor and philosophy, which is not the least of its charms. It is illustrated by Arthur Henning, ex-lumberman and North-West Mounted policeman, and is announced by the publishers as an all-Canadian book—written by a Canadian, illustrated by a Canadian, and printed and bound in Canada. It is a most welcome addition to the Canadian reading public. The United States edition is issued by Harper.

I have a few of the older type of typewriters in good order which I am selling at from only $20.00 to $35.00. As prevailing American prices for similar machines, they would be at least $50.00 in each case. A MILNE FRASER, Halifax, N.S.

Ople Read was playing a three-handed match with two other players named Sterrett and Adams. Read had his drive and the ball went into an abandoned quarry, where he stranded after it.

Presently the two waiting outside heard a series of whacks, and after a bit one comes the ball with Read in hot pursuit.

'How many shots in the quarry?' asked Adams.

'Three,' said Read.

'Adams turned to Sterrett and they both laughed. 'Why,' said he, 'Bill said I heard six plainly.'

'I know,' said Read, 'but three of them were echoes.'

Passing the 'Blue Lion,' the priest caught the reverend gentleman, looking very solemn.

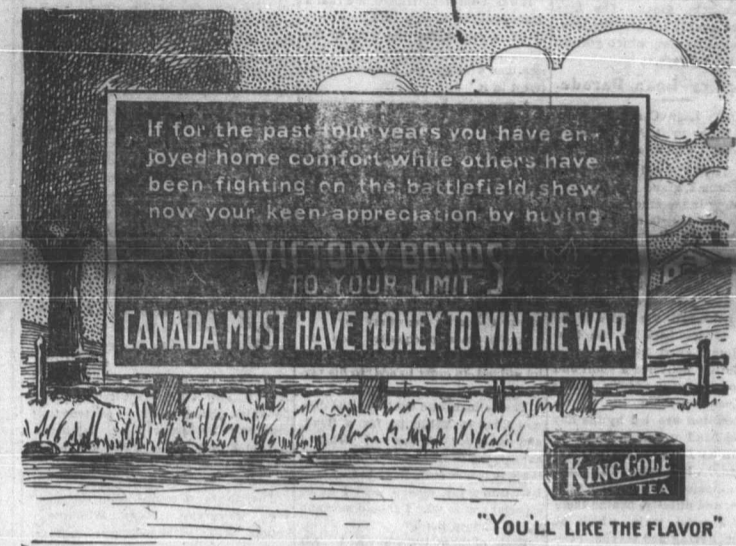

'Whiskey, sorr,' answered Pat.

'To whom does it belong?' asked the good man.

'To me and my brother John, sorr.'

'Well, Pat, pour yours out and be a good man.'

The Power of Advertising.

The Maritime Merchant quotes from the Chicago Tribune what seems almost a magic story of the rise of the great department store—Selfridge and Co.—in London. Mr. Selfridge had had his earlier training with the great Marshall Field store in Chicago, and had proven himself a brilliant manager, but when he announced his intention of opening a huge department store in the heart of the drapery district in London, some of his friends thought he must have suddenly gone mad. They got on their note pads and crowded each other to themselves that there was not a possible chance for him, that he would lose every cent he had. This was several years before the war. To say Harry Gordon Selfridge is one of the merchant princes of the world to use his own words in telling the story of the growth of his business. At the beginning of this year we were the sixteenth largest house of the kind in the world. At the end of the year we were the largest.

in newspapers. We are taking right every inch they will give us and at rates that would make us in the States turn our backs and fall over backwards. Mr. Selfridge tells what these rates are. 'I am paying at the rate of $5 per page line for display space, but I will take more space if they will give it to me at that rate. I probably will pay more before the war is over. But I will take all that they can give.'

Mr. Selfridge also tells of the deep business principle behind it all. 'First the people know through advertising that the firm has the goods; secondly they know through experience that the firm can be trusted; and thirdly, the firm trusts the people. Not in the matter of lying upon the record, but the matter of lying upon the record and the business in front of the buying public. Mr. Selfridge summarizes the whole gospel of advertising in the following words: 'No more than at any other time, it is necessary to push the display of advertising. If retrenchments appear in the newspaper advertising one, these prices they are making us now are awful—but I will take more space if they will give it to me.'

The Chicago paper says that in London the Selfridge store is frequently referred to as the 'Miracle store' and the 'brilliant business room.'

The Gaylord Stutzel says this happened to a woman teacher in the grammar grade, when she asked her class, 'What tense am I speaking in when I say, 'I am beautiful?'

A small boy replied, 'The past tense, ma'am.'

Be Ready For Emergencies

The best way is to always keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Licorice and Turpentine in the house, ready for emergencies. Then when a cold or cough comes suddenly they can be promptly cured before they have time to reach an acute and dangerous stage. To meet this requirement we have put the syrup up in family size bottles which contain nearly three times as much as the 25 cent bottle and sell at 60 cents.

I want to know,' said the grim-faced woman, 'how much money my husband drew out of the bank last week.'

'I can't give you that information, ma'am,' answered the man in the cage.

'You're the paying teller, aren't you?'

The Gaylord Stutzel says this happened to a woman teacher in the grammar grade, when she asked her class, 'What tense am I speaking in when I say, 'I am beautiful?'

A small boy replied, 'The past tense, ma'am.'

Mother is Well Now

Your Noise Does Not Disturb Me Any More—It is a Pleasure to Hear You Romp and Play.

'It is like a dream now to think of the long, weary months I spent in nervous helplessness. Some days I would be cheered by feeling better, but only to slip back again, and to be more than ever discouraged.'

'I had always been very active. Had a wide acquaintance and did much entertaining. In addition to helping in whatever was going on at the church, there was Red Cross work to be done, and all the time I had my little family to look after and could not get help.'

'I suppose I tried to do too much, for I got so I could not sleep at nights and always felt tired out in the mornings. Then I would have headaches and did not seem to care for my meals.'

'Instead of the usual ambition and energy I found myself putting off the duties of the day. I got behind with the housework, and this worried me.'

'I did not think that I was sick, but only tired. However, the time came when I did not get up in the morning. I simply could not. The doctor came and said, "Nervous Prostration." It seems I had kept on the go until the nervous system was wrung dry of all nerve force.'

'Then came the long, weary weeks, and weeks dragged into months, without finding much improvement. I was completely discouraged and almost devoid of hope.'

'But one day a friend told me of her experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and she was so sure that this treatment would do me good that I decided to give it a chance.'

'I need scarcely say that there were some dark, discouraging days after beginning the use of the Nerve Food, but as my appetite and digestion improved I felt that I was gradually getting back the old-time vigor. Sleep became more natural and refreshing. The dark days passed and I began to take a more cheerful view of the future. Then I began to plan what I would do when I got around again. The house must be decorated and the children brought home, for I had to send them to my sister's on account of the way their noise disturbed me.'

'Now I feel that I am entirely well again, and without hesitation give the credit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I cannot tell you the pleasure it gives me to be restored to my husband and children after the long period of helplessness.'

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 2 for $1.75, all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Used For Shaving.

Many men are troubled, more particularly in the cold weather, with a sort of roughness of the skin or eczema caused by shaving. The application of Dr. Chase's Ointment after the shave soon cures the trouble, and by using it after each shave you keep the skin soft and prevent irritation and soreness. Because of its antiseptic qualities the ointment prevents and cures Barber's Itch.
