The Slave's Dream.

Beside the ungathered rice he lay, His sickle in his hand; His breast was bare, his mutted hair Was buried in the sand. Again, in the mist and shadow of sleep, He saw his Native Land.

Wide through the handscape of his dreams The lordly Niger flowed; Beneath the palm-trees on the plain Once more a king he strode; And heard the tinking caravans Descond the mountain road.

He saw once more his dark-eyed queen
Among her children stand;
They clasped his neck, they kissed his check;
They held him by the hand!—
A tear burst from the sleeper's lids,
And fell into the sand.

And then at furious speed he rode
Along the Niger's bank;
His bridle-reins were golden chains,
And, with a martial clank,
At each leap he could feel the scabbard of steel
Smiting his stallion's flank.

Before him, like a blood-red flag, The bright flamingoes flow;
The bright flamingoes flow;
From morn till night he followed their flight
O'er plains where the tarmarind grew,
Till he saw the roofs of Caffre huts,

At night he heard the lion rear, And the hyena scream,
And the river-horse, as he crushed the reeds
Beside some hidden stream,
And it passed like a glorious roll of drums
Through the triumph of his dream.

The forests, with their myriad tongue, Shouted of liberty; And the blast of the Desert cried aloud With a voice so wild and free, That he started in his sleep, and smiled At their tempestuous glee.

He did not feel the driver's whip, Nor the burning heat of day;
For death had illumined the Land of Sleep,
And his lifeless body lay,
A worn-out fetter, that the soul

WANTED A WIFE.

We copy the following remarks from the New York Commercial Advertiser:—"Some 'nice young man,'—we infer his youth from his folly—sends us a long advertisement announcing that he"wants a wife and a fortune." As a substitute for his name and a remittance, he respectfully solicits its publication, and "solemnly declares, that no trifling majives induce him to adopt this eccentric methol in so serious a matter." Supposing the would-be advertiser, whose letter is post-marked 'Buffalo, to be in carnest, without wit enough to practice a joke, his "motives" are by no means tryfting, since he wants $10,000 as a fortune; and with great nouchalance requests the 1-nglish papers, in copying his advertisement, to substitute ten thousand pounds for ten thousand dollars. In other words it would require a 'motive' five times as strong to accept an English lady that it would an American. A Canadian—for he wishes the Canada papers to copy also—he would take at the same price as an American, which we think likely—if he gets either. The youth then passes from folly to crime, for he deliberately asys. 'Mo one regards the matrimonial relation more sacted than himself," which must be a fals shood; and next he combines folly and falsehood in the following sentence: 'He wishes your kindly consideration, and hopes hereafter to acknowledge your instrumentality in his success." Guess his hope is doomed to disappointment. The man is certainly to be pitted, and as certainly deserves to be despised. To want a fortune is a sat thing; to want a wife, a sadder; to want common sense enough to keep such horrible necessities to himself, is the saddest of all. The gentleman says, he is 'perfect in moral character.' It might be well for him to add to morality, modesty, and to his modesty, mother, wit; of which quality he does not seem to possess the billionth part of a grain.'

AN ORATOR'S DOMESTIC ELOQUENCE .- Mr. Pitt was a ro An Obaton's Domestic Eloquence.—Mr. Pitt was a remarkably shy man. He was on terms of the greatest intimacy with Lord Camden; and being at his house on a morning visit "Pitt," said his lordship, "my children have heard so much about you, that they are extremely anxious to have a glimpse at the great man. They are just now at dinner in the next room; you will oblige me by going in with me for a moment." "O, pray don't ask me; what on earth could I say to them!"—"Give them at least the pleasure of seeing you." And half led, half pushed into the room, the prime minister approached the little group, looked from their father to them, and from them to their father, remained for several minutes twirling his hat, without finding a single sentence at his disposal, and hat, without finding a single sentence at his disposal, and departed. So much for the domestic eloquence of an orator.

CONSUMPTION.—I we or three years ago, says the Scientific American, experiments were made by ujembers of the London Faculty of Physicians, in different hospitals, for the cure of diseases of the langs, by breathing in warm medicated vapors. The success of the experiment was so gratifying, that an institution, the Brompton Hospital, for the cure of the Broninstitution, the Drompton Tospital, for the cure of the Bron-chitis and consumption, was immediately established, and so favourable has been the result of the treatment that the number of patients admitted during the past year is between two and three thousand, and the hospital report shows, that full seventy-five in every hundred have been completely cured.

How to Select a Scythe.—Workmen often make a complaint of their soythes not acting well, of the edge not cutting uniformly, and the form being wrong, &c. Now the form best suited to each mower may be tested by a very simple experiment. Let a man with a piece of chalk in his hand walk up to a high wall, or a barn door, and raising it as high as he can, strike a curve from right to left; the line so traced is the exact form his soythe should be; and if he applies the edge of it, and finds it to correspond, it will cut uniformly from point to heel, and save himself much trouble and labour.

Rafus Porter, who is building a flying ship at Washington, in his semi-monthly report to the stock-holders, says: "The fibrous material for the float and saloon has been all varnished, and the sewing and making up the float are now in progress, and we may have it ready for inflation in two weeks. The frame-work of the saloon, and the longitudinal rods for the float, are ready to be set up. The engine and boilers are only waiting for the furnace.

The papers publish the marrige of Mr. J. Strange to Miss Elizabeth Strange. This is somewhat Strange, certainly, but it is probable the next important event in that family will be a little Stranger.

It has now been opened and in successful operation upwards of nine years. The arrangements which were made to accomplish the important object for which it had been founded, were such as obtained for it from its very commencement, a very high position in the public estimation. And those, upon whom the direction of its affairs has devolved, have been encouraged and stimulated, by its prosperity, to continued efforts to render it, in all its departments, ever increasingly efficient. A MOST MIRACULOUS CURE OF BAD LEGS, AFTER

Mary's Street, Weynouth, deted May 10, 1831.

To Protessor Holloway,

Sta,—At the age of 18 my wife (who is now 61) caught a violent cold, which acttled is her legs, and ever since that time they have been more or less sore, and greatly broamed. Her agonics were distracting, and for months together she was deprived cutrictly of rest and steep. Every remedy that medical uses advised was tried, but without effect; her health suffered severely, and the state of her legs was terrible. I had often rend your Advertisements, and advised her to try your Pills and Ointment; and, as a last resource, after every other remedy had proved useloss, she consented to do so. She commanced six weeks age, and, strange to relate, is now in good health. Her legs are pamless, without some or sear, and her sleep sound and medistrated. Could you have witnessed the sufferings of my wife during the last 42 years, and contrast them with her present enjoyment of health, you would indeed feel delighted in having been the means of so greatly adviating the sufferings of fellow creature.

TO Professur HotLowar.

Sir.—I suffered for a period of thirty years from a bad leg, the result of two or three different accidents at tias Works; accompanied by scorbutic symptome. I had recourse to a variety of medical advice, without deriving any benefit, and was even told that the leg must be amputated; yet, in opposition to that opinion, your Fills and Ointment have effected a complete cure in so short a time, that few who had not witnessed it would credit the fact..

To Professor Holloway,

DEAR Sin,—My wife had suffered from Bad Breasts for more than six months, and during the whole period had the best medical attendance, but all to no use. Having before healed an awful wound in, my own leg by your unrivilled medicine, I determined again to use y on Fills and Ointment, and therefore gave them a trail in her case, not fortunate it was, I did so, for in less than a month a perfect cure was effected, and the benefit, that various other branches of my family have derived from their use is really astonishing. I now strongly recommend them to all my friends.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF A DANGEROUS SWELLING OF THE KNEE.

Copy of a letter from John Forfar, as Agriculturist, residing at Newborough, near Heaham, dated May 15, 1850.

To Professor Holloway,

Sun,—I was afflicted with a swelling on each side of the leg, rather above the kare, for nearly two years, which increased to a great size. I had the advice of three eminent Surgeous here, and was an inmade of the Newcastle infining for four weeks. After various modes of treatment had been tried, I was discharged as incurable. I having heard so much of your Pills and Ointment, I determined to try them, and in less than a month, I was completely cured. What is more remarkable I was engaged twelve hours a day in the Hay Harvest, and although I have followed my laborious occupation throughout the winters have had no return whatever of my complaint.

WONDER OF THE WORLD.

Gentlemen,—I have been entirely cured of the Gravel, by the us of your Cramp and Pain Killer. I commenced taking the Cramp and Pain Killer in the Spring of 1847. I had been a great sufferer for ten years previous; some four or five years of the time I suffered beyond all my powers to describe.

During this time, I have had medicel sid, and tried various specifics, but found very little relief until I obtained your Cramp and Pain Killer. In one month after I commenced using it, I began to grow better. I continued to use it for a year, all the time improving until I was entirely cured.

All of which will be prevented by giving one of these p.wders, and will at any time, cure when any symptoms of disease appear, if used in time.
