

DISTRICT NEWS

LAMBERTON. Bulletin News Service. The new building for the Canadian Bank of Commerce is well under way and will make a splendid addition to the town. F. Dowwell is the carpenter. D. Jewell is going to open a real estate business. Lamerton now is a busy place, but it is hoped that by next summer it will still be busier. Bashaw, the new town on the G. T. P., is growing rapidly. It is one of the busiest towns on the new road. It now has three grocery stores and a hardware, and two restaurants. The hotel is not finished yet. It is said it will cost $22,000 when finished. Lamerton, Jan. 24.

WETASKIWIN. Bulletin News Service. At a sitting of the District Court at Wetaskiwin, before His Honor Judge Leach, the case of Henry vs. MacDonald was tried. This case arose out of a real estate agent in Ponoka and had an exclusive listing of MacDonald's farm property. Henry offered the property to Phelps for $2,300. After Phelps had seen the land he expressed "displeasure" with it, but suddenly broke his negotiations with Henry and bought the land for $2,000 through another agent. Henry then sued MacDonald for $300, the difference between the $2,300 and the $2,000. The verdict was in favor of Henry, the real estate agent, for $75 with costs on the small debt scale. This decision is an important one for real estate agents. J. E. Varley, of Calgary, for plaintiff, and O'Brien and Knox, for defendant. Wetaskiwin, Jan. 23.

SCOTT. Bulletin News Service. The Town Hall at Scott is now nearing completion and will be one of the finest in the west, outside the large cities. It is two stories, with full size basement, and is built of brick. The basement contains the steam heating plant and storage rooms. On the ground floor are rooms for the Town and Mounted Police, three cells, fire hall, secretary's office, and council chamber. The upper floor is wholly given over to public hall purposes. The floor of the latter is polished maple, making one of the finest dance halls in the Province. The equipment consists of opera chairs and a full outfit of scenery. The hall cost over $10,000 to build and equip. A debenture issue of $5,000 had been approved for the construction of a municipal hospital. A neat and commodious building is proposed for the benefit of the town of Scott. Mayor Street has just returned from Regina where he has represented the town on business connected with the by-laws. His mission was eminently successful. Constable Smith of the Mounted Police leaves about the first of February for Regina to take examination for corporal's stripes. A fire brigade is now being organized to take charge of the new equipment which consists of two chemical engines and a ladder truck. Scott, Jan. 22.

MILLET. Bulletin News Service. The road from Pigeon Lake to Millet is lined with teams hauling lumber for the two companies, the Pigeon Lake Saw Mill and the North West Lumber Co., who are moving some six or seven million feet during the winter months. This work costs $4.50 per thousand, or in all $30,000, which will be paid out in Millet this winter for hauling lumber along the road. A railway is needed through the Pigeon Lake country where hundreds of millions of feet of timber are standing close to the seat of consumption, but which cannot be profitably utilized owing to the lack of a railroad to haul the product to market. The above named companies have been operating at Pigeon Lake for the past six years in a very expensive way owing to the very long distance to haul their lumber to the shipping point at Millet, but they hope each year to be relieved by the construction of the Strathcona-Calgary branch of the C.N.R. There is no part or portion of the western country that is in more need of railway service than the country between Calgary and the North Saskatchewan river, between the C. and E. and the Rocky Mountains. The strip of country mentioned is well settled for 60 miles west of the C. and E. railway, which section, it is needless to say, are simply existing, waiting and praying for railroad communications and transportation to market their product. Millet, Jan. 24.

WETASKIWIN. Bulletin News Service. Today Judge Lees gave two more decisions regarding appeals from the 1910 assessment. In the appeal of A. T. Mads against assessment for income tax, his worship held that assessment was not valid. In the appeal of E. F. Chandler against over assessment of his horses and lots was dismissed for want of evidence, although the judge was of opinion a wrong principle had been adopted. When given as soon as the croup cough appears Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will ward off an attack of croup and prevent all danger and cause of anxiety. Thousands of mothers use it successfully. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The fifth annual convention of the Association of School Trustees of the Province of Alberta is now in progress here. The morning and afternoon sessions were devoted to serious business papers on manual training in rural schools, teaching agreements and kindred subjects being discussed. In the evening a concert was given by the pupils and teachers of the Alexander, King Edward and High Schools. The programme was excellent, each place being well rendered, but special mention is deserved to the Kindergarten. This department which takes charge of the little ones at the tender age of four years is in charge of Mrs. Terry, assisted by Miss Wvild. It speaks well for the patience and ability of these ladies that six of the smallest members of this class should march on to a public platform, and without a mistake or breakdown, render a fine musical interest was the military drill of the cadets. The chairman, Mayor Fowler, in introducing this part of the programme, stated that the Trustees when sanctioning the formation of the Association had set up with the idea of bringing the trustees of the members but for the training and general good of the boys. The fact was excellent and the idea of the boys forming a pyramid five boys high, as a word of commendation and falling list on the stage. Last evening at 11:30, although it was a particularly bitter night the boys turned out promptly, and in the supposed fire, to find on the arrival that it was merely a small fire built for the purpose of showing out a pump. J. A. Grant, of Wabamun, is in the city, and says that so soon as the weather permits, he intends to re-commence drilling operations for maturing. Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

VICE-PRESIDENT WYTHE ON C.P.R. EXTENSIONS

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25.—Wm. Wythe, vice-president of the C. P. R., has just returned to the city from Montreal, where he has been in conference with President Shaughnessy. His story of what work the company will do in 1914 through the west is of much interest. As to the mileage which the company will add to its system this year, Mr. Wythe said that the plan contemplated the construction of 334 miles of new lines, 140 miles of double track and additions to the existing sidings of 48 miles. The new lines to be constructed are the most important. They run north and south from Swift Current, in "ten or twelve years ago," said Mr. Wythe, "if some one had told me that the line would come into large amounts of wheat would be made from Swift Current, I would have said that it was a fit subject for the present time. Last evening at 11:30, although it was a particularly bitter night the boys turned out promptly, and in the supposed fire, to find on the arrival that it was merely a small fire built for the purpose of showing out a pump. J. A. Grant, of Wabamun, is in the city, and says that so soon as the weather permits, he intends to re-commence drilling operations for maturing. Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

HOTELMEN WILL STOP LICENSE VIOLATIONS

At Annual Meeting Licensed Victuallers' Association Place Themselves on Record as Opposed to Violations of Law. At the annual meeting of the Licensed Victuallers' association of the Province of Alberta, held in Edmonton this week, it was definitely decided to open an Edmonton office and appoint a permanent secretary to carry on the work of the association. For this purpose, forms have been printed in the Moses-Rider block on First street, which are now being equipped for this purpose. The appointment of a secretary has not yet been announced. The Officers Elected. The following is the list of officers elected: Hon. president—A. C. Cross, Calgary. Hon. vice-president—R. Seord, Edmonton. Hon. secretary—L. E. Goodridge, Edmonton. Hon. treasurer—C. H. Belanger, Edmonton. Vice-presidents—T. Rookes (Edmonton), H. L. Stephens (Calgary), J. Stenion (Lacombe), Mr. Smith, Dobbie (Pincher Creek), C. H. Eckstrom (Lethbridge). Treasurer—J. McCalla, Edmonton. Auditor—H. L. Stephens (Calgary), N. Bell (Edmonton). District officers—Strathcona, Messrs. Belanger and Sheppard, Calgary; Messrs. Beauchamps and Shaw; Inglewood, Mr. B. Sull; Lethbridge, Messrs. Rich and Downer; Macleod, Mr. Swinton; Dalmore, Mr. D. C. Drain; Red Deer, Mr. Rattan; Banff, Mr. C. Cardan; Canmore, Mr. Stettler; Medicine Hat, Mr. Stettler; Vegreville, Mr. McAllister.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

WOULD NOT DEVELOP GRAND RAPIDS POWER

Commissioner Boulton Favours Investigations Looking To Location of Grand Rapids Power. Market Privileges Are Awarded. That it would be a mistake to go so far as to develop Grand Rapids power for the development of electric power for use of the municipality was the opinion of Commissioner Boulton at the meeting of the Grand Rapids council at Wednesday's meeting of commissioners. The commissioner expressed his opinion in favour of continuing investigations in the spring, as a view to locating a suitable site near Grand Rapids, in accordance with the Grand Rapids site. In explaining the objects of the association, the president, Mr. Belanger, referred the reporter to two resolutions passed by the association, one a year ago, the other at the last regular meeting. The first reads: "That this association in convention assembled, hereby places itself on record as unalterably opposed to any violation of the Liquor License Ordinance by any holder of a license in this province, either on the part of himself or his employees; and further: That this association pledges itself to do all in its power to rid the trade of all violators of the license law by any and every means at its command, and further resolved that a committee be appointed to wait on the government and ask that any man known to wilfully break the law shall not be granted a license in this province." The second resolution is forwarded to the attorney general and that his co-operation be asked in the carrying out of the said resolution. The second is in similar spirit: "That the association do not accept the membership of, nor will it harbor any licensee who is known to be a habitual violator of the law, and that the association is authorized to take any action in all such cases, and report them to the attorney general, and any member violating the liquor license law will be expelled by the association."

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor, Ezra P. Fenton, who was made chairman by Roosevelt after he had defeated the "old guard" of the party last September, will absolutely control the spring state convention in 1912, which will elect the delegates from New York state to the national convention. The vote taken showed that Roosevelt's strength in the party amounts to just five of the 23 members. In accepting the chairmanship Barnes bitterly assailed Roosevelt by reference. He pleaded for recognition of the fact that "the extent of the United States is sufficient for its people," and declared that "unless cannot be mistaken for progress." "Members of the 'old guard' while declining to be quoted, hinted that they considered that President Taft would have to fight for nomination next year against Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. The latter, it is predicted, will be the candidate for the radicals, which Taft will have the support of the east and south. With New York assuredly behind him, it was suggested by the Barnes men that President Taft may now proceed with the consultation of Senator Cummins of Iowa. Taft, they say, would like to have Roosevelt's support, as his running mate on the next national ticket. Roosevelt supporters at Saturday's meeting voted for State Senator Seth Heacock, of Herkimer county, as chairman. Heacock got five votes. Before the vote was taken there were a number of bitter speeches made. Personalities were freely indulged in, but there was no personal attack. It was agreed that there was to be "no airing of dirty linen in public," and that the members would discuss for publication what happened.

Wetaskiwin, Jan. 25. The elimination of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is an appreciable factor in the political situation in New York. This was the construction placed upon the action of the Republican committee in selecting William Barnes, Jr., the Albany boss, for chairman. The committee which was reorganized on Saturday afternoon, after resigning the late Governor,