Mistress of the Situation.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Three groups of people, each slightly acquainted with the other two and, possessing but few points of interest in common—that is what we found when we drifted into a friend's house at afternoon tea-time the other day.

We made the fourth group. It must have been an awkward gathering, you say?

It certainly might have been but it wasn't, and thereby hangs my tale.

For, with consummate skill and poise our hostess fused us into a congenial group, chatting like old friends, interested and interesting.

As Clever as a Surgeon.

As cleverly as a skilled surgeon extracts a bullet, she drew the sting of awkwardness out of the situation.

Do you know what I call an ability to do a thing like that?

I call it genius.

And yet perhaps that is not quite fair, for genius is a gift, a thing in-born, and social tact is more in the nature of a talent, that is, a natural tendency cultivated and encouraged.

Every woman should cultivate this tendency in herself and her children. There are so many awkward little situations in everyday life that to be able to deal with them gracefully is to smooth your own pathway and give pleasure everywhere you go.

Can You Talk to Your Friend's Friend?

You find yourself sitting in the trolley beside some one whom you want to talk to—perhaps an old school-time acquaintance, perhaps a friend's friend whom you have met but once or twice. Will you pretend not to see her and stare awkwardly out of one window? Will you say a commonplace word or two and then sit in doubly awkward silence? Or will you be able to chat easily and part with her gracefully?

You meet some one who has suffered a great loss. Will you be able to feel instinctively whether a word of sympathy would be soothing or painful, and withhold it or offer it accordingly?

The family skelton of some friend has come out into the open. Can you greet her with a manner that shall ignore the business without making her conscious that you are trying to do so? You go out to an evening gathering and find it stiff and uncongenial. Can you fuse it into friendliness and congeniality?

"The Way to Learn to Write Is to Write."

Perhaps you are wondering how one goes about to acquire this delicate and difficult art. That's as hard to say as to tell anyone how to write a book. Some encouraging philosopher has said, "The best way to learn to write is to write." So the best way to learn social tact is to practice it.

Cultivate poise and serenity; give free play to that sympathetic imagination which helps us to put ourselves in the place of others; and above all things, think less of yourself and how you are appearing, and more of others and what you can do for them.

POOR OLD JOHN.

John Barclay, the swagging, just now is badly staggering beneath repeated blows; for kings says, "He is ruinous—dodgast the stuff he's brewin' us," and and biff him on the nose. "The kings, alert and vigorous, are taking measures rigorous, to swat old John again; "He's worse than guns and scabs are," remark the kings, "his labors are addressed to downing men. Out where our flags are shimmering, the bottle must go glimmering, it makes the soldiers rude; it spoils the ardent warrior, and nothing could be sorrier than fighting him half stewed." Thus speak the Lord's anointed ones, and they are the appointed ones their people's weal to guard; they see that John, the lecherous, is vicious, mean and treacherous, and so they soak him hard. And if, in Europe's villages, old John, who slays and pillages, runs up against a frost, the war, with all its slaughtering, that leaves the nations tottering, is well worth what it cost.

SAYS GERMANS KILLED CANADIAN AMBULANCE MEN.

London, April 30.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail declares emphatically that he has never sent and never intends to send unproven stories of German cruelty, but he says the following is absolutely proved that "a Canadian ambulance was deliberately sought out and followed by a battery, until all were killed."

"Almost for the first time," he adds "I found in our men that feeling of bitter rancor which makes even shattered men, crawl back from the hospital into battle."

In Milady's Boudoir.

THE OUTDOOR BEAUTIFIER.

It would seem hardly necessary to warn women about their daily walks after all the things we read in the daily papers and magazines regarding the beneficial effects on beauty and health derived from the daily walk.

In my acquaintance of friends I can count at least five women who would prefer to sit in their home all during the splendid Spring days than bother to dress and romp out in the sunshine. It is very possible that this habit has become chronic and the effort of dressing is considered a task.

If you have ever been so indiscreet as to waste a glorious day indoors without sufficient reason, perhaps it has taught you a lesson, when you have tried the "getting out" idea, but if you have been so unfortunate as to have wasted all your sunny afternoons, then maybe it will take more expeditious methods to convince you of what you have lost.

Each day, when the weather is fine, don your clothes quickly and jaunt forth to enjoy your birthright, fresh air, and sunshine. If you have no children of your own, borrow your neighbour's and romp along with them. Watch their appreciation of the bright Spring days in the park, and your own heart will respond in gladness for innocent mirth of children is infectious, it cannot be denied.

Economy

GAS COKE yields 44 per cent. of radiant heat, whereas coal gives only 19 per cent. under the same conditions.

GAS COKE is clean to handle. GAS COKE is smokeless. GAS COKE gives a clear red glow. GAS COKE lasts longer than coal. Light the fire with paper and sticks and a little coal. When once burning make it up with Coke, the cheapest solid fuel.

For a limited time only, the St. John's Gas Light Company will deliver in any part of the town at $6.50 per ton, or $5.25 per half ton.

The Crescent Picture Palace is showing a great Picture Programme to-day. See the regular advertisement in another part of this issue for particulars. Every film of the best, the kind the Crescent always supplies to its patrons. "The Drudge" is a Vitagraph 2 part feature. "A Chance in Life" is a strong story pictured by the Lubin Company. "The Saving Presence" is a Biograph drama, and John Bunny, the funniest man in filmdom is seen in a comedy of his own making. "Some picture show," you say, you're right, go to-day and see it.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

This Spring brought out many smartly dressed children who paced up the avenue beside their elders on the way home from church, evidently conscious of dainty finery, as older women would not dare to appear conscious of the same.

And all the little girls wore be-ruffled coats, or even six gay, fluttering ruffles below the sash or belt. These ruffled coats did not fall to the knee, but midway between knee and waistline, the frock of white lawn and embroidery showing beneath.

An enchanting little coat was of Edgewood blue mohair and worsted mixture with buttons of white pearl and six narrow ruffles of Wedgewood blue pussy willow hemmed overlapping each other below a wide belt of blue suede. The little girl's hat was trimmed with blue cornflowers and her blue eyes matched the tones of her new costume.

Charming little frocks are made for the kiddies of white embroidered voile.

Rod and Gun.

Rod and Gun for May, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont., is out with an interesting list of contents. Edward T. Martin contributes an article "Have the Pigeons Returned" dealing with the possible recurrence of the passenger pigeon, which has been pronounced extinct by as great an authority as Prof. Hornaday of New York. "A Ram of the Stormy Petrel" is a Western story of a ram whom its pursuers regarded as a creature of the evil one. How its propensity for vanishing into thin air was finally explained and the ram secured is most entertainingly related by Ray Giddings. Other stories and the regular departments combine to make an exceptionally interesting number of this well known sportsman's magazine.

New Steamer Iceland.

No word of the new steamer Iceland, which is under construction in Glasgow for Balne Johnston & Co., has been heard for some time and it is thought the finishing touches on the ship are being detained on account of war conditions, particularly the scarcity of engineers and workmen generally. Capt. J. Randall who will command the new steamer is now on the other side superintending matters.
