THE W. O. BIBLE SOCIETY An Attempt to Harmonize Dis

And the Reply of the Seceders-The Difficulty Not Yet Settled-Election of Secretary and Treasurer Pro Tem.

At the adjourned annual meeting of the Western Ontario Bible Society, held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms yesterday afternoon, Rev. Geo. Boyd read two letters. One was a "message" sent by himself and Rev. A. C. Courtie on behalf of the society to the several gentlemen who recently withdrew. The text of this one was as follows: ows:

message to the brethren withdrawing from the Bible Society.

Dear Brethren—We deeply regretted to learn of you withdrawal from the Western Ontario Bible Society without assigning reasons. The points of difference between us seems to be two, as far as we understand then viz.: 1. The disproportionate denomina tional strength on the Board of Directors tional strength on the Board of Directors, and (2) the election of the Rev. J. H. Orme (Methodist), as depositary to succeed Dr. Evans (Methodist). On these points we wish to state the position fairly, and make the following explanations and suggestions for your favorable consideration. We wish the composition of the Board of Directors for the previous year to be accurately known. We understand the analysis of those unally notified to be as curately known. We understand the analysis of those usually notified to be Vice-Presidents—3 Anglican, 4 Presby-terians and 5 Methodists.

Honorary Secretary—Presbyterian.

This makes the full board to consist of This makes the full board to consist of 15 Anglicans, 10 Presbyterians, 21 Methodists, 2 Congregationalists and 4 Baptists. For the composition of the board, as above, we are not responsible; it was not of our seeking. It was the action of the annual meeting on nomination of the board of the previous year. There is an excess of Methodist laymen on the general committee which we have expressed our readiness to remedy at once by the acceptance of the names and services of any reasonable number of additional representatives from of the names and services of any reasonable number of additional representatives from the other churches. We are willing also to limit the ministerial representation on the board to the pastors in the active work. The board proposed for the current year is constituted as follows: 16 Anglicans, 13 Presbyterians, 18 Methodists, 2 Congregrationalists and 5 Eaptists. This makes a board of 56 persens, and as there are but six regular meetings in the year, we think six regular meetings in the year, we think six regular meetings in the year, we think it not overly large. If the board were constituted merely for business efficiency we think that a committee of 3 or 5 would we think that a committee of 3 or 5 would best serve the purpose, but as it is constituted to be representative of an important common Christian interest, we think it should not be reduced.

Concerning the election of depositary, dear brethren, we make the following statement: At the time of the election the choice, was between Messer. choice was between Messrs. choice was between Messrs. McEwen (Presbyterian), Softly (Anglican), Orme (Methodist), and one other. After the second ballot the choice remained between Mr. Softly and Mr. Orme. We cast our votes on that occasion under an honest conviction of the suitability of Mr. Orme, especially as he had a daughter with a business education suitable to qualify her for work in the depository when the agent might be away.

If the election of a Methodist to succeed If the election of a Methodist to succeed Dr. Evans is open to objection we are prepared to accept heartily at the close of the present year a Presbyterian or an Anglican depositary, if a brother of genial spirit and working strength is nominated. If these explanations and suggestions meet with your favor we are prepared to continue the work heartily and vigorously as heretofore under the present constitution. The preunder the present constitution. The pro posed revised constitution we could not support, because we felt that its mathematical exactness failed to meet the claims of equity, and because the reason assigned for secking the revision was incorrect, viz., that the Methodists had taken advantage of the old constitution to secure undue and unfair strength on the board.

Trusting this letter may meet every practical difficulty in the case, and commending the work to the Gread Head of the Church, we remain, dear brethren, on behalf of the committee, G. Boyd.

The reply received read as follows:

Several Things the Conference Did Not Do.

Election of Official Editors-Debate on the Itinerancy Question.

OMAHA, Neb., May 19 .- There is to be OMAINA, Neb., May 19.—There is to be no limitation of the tenure of the episcopacy by the Methodist General Conference, no districting of the bishops, no man elected to the episcopal office on the sole ground of color, and no new bishops of any description, excepting, possibly, at the last moment, a missionary bishop for Europe. There were many who said that the episcopacy would emerge from this conference with its wings badly clipped. So far, however, it has not lost a feather, but, if anything, it has gained both in dignity and strength.

thing, it has gained both in dignity and strength. Yesterday a resolution was passed expressing the satisfaction of the conference at the presence of the fraternal delegates from the Methodist Episcopal Church south and the Independent Methodist Churches, expressing hope that in the near future all branches of the great Methodist Church would become one body in the Lord.

Jesse L. Hurlburt was elected secretary of the Sunday School and Tract Society, Or. J. W. Mendenhall editor of the Methodist Review, and Dr. James Monroe Buckley, editor of the New York Christian Advecate, all by acclamation.

There was a debate on the report of the

There was a debate on the report of the Itinerancy Committee, proposing to strike out that section in the discipline providing for the five-year limit on the pastorate and to allow the bishops the option of sending a minister back to the same place year attryear, if expedient. Dr. Arthur Edwards, of Chicago, editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, favored abolishing the five-year limit. It was held, he said, by some that this would abolish itinerancy. It would do no such thing. Every pastorate would close at once at the end of every year just as they do now. This would simply give the bishops and presiding simply give the bishops and presiding would close at once at the end of every year just as they do now. This would simply give the bishops and presiding ciders power to keep men in these places where they could be of the greatest benefit to the church, and it would entirely remove the apparent claim of the pastors upon the right to be kept in the same place for five years.

Rev. Ackerman, of Tennessee, made some pretty lively thrusts at the presiding elders and the bishops. The speaker created a good deal of merriment. The conference guved him, crying "louder" when he was yelling at the top of his voice.

A minority report from the committee

A minority report from the committee was presented opposing the abolishing of the present limit, five years.

Dr. Caswell, of Southern Callifornia, held that the needs of the church and the judgment of the bishops and presiding elders should decide upon the appointments and almanaes. What would the country have thought of President Lincoln if he had removed Grant at the end of the second year moved Grant at the end of the second year.

thought of President Lincoln if he had removed Grant at the end of the second year of the war and placed somebody else at the head, on account of some trivial rule that called for a change. Such an action as that would have been just about as wise as the present method of moving Methodist ministers at the end of every five years without regard to the condition of the work they were doing. He believed in keeping men in the places where they could do the most good regardless of the number of years. He liked the idea of life pastor. The debate was adjourned.

It is generally conceded that Dr. Arthur Edwards has been elected editor of the Northwestern Advocate, although official announcement was not made.
