IN EARLY LONDON

Mr. John Montague's Interesting Reminiscences of London Village.

When Wolves Howled Over the River-The First Drowning-The First School-Primitive

Justice.

Mr. John Montague, of Blanshard,

Iowa, was in the city the other day, and is now on a visit to friends in Strathroy. Mr. Montague was one of the earliest residents of London, having moved into the city with his father, when a child, in the year 1827, when there was only a few houses on the site of the present large city. Mr. Montague, who is now in his 73rd year, is in excellent health and spirits. He possesses very retentive memory and is full of interesting reminiscences of old times in the pioneer village of London. A short time before the death of the late James Williams he visited that veteran pioneer in this city. Together the two lived old times over again and compared notes, or rather memories. Well did they recollect the fact that they had been school boys together in the first school established in the city of London. The late Mr. Williams arrived in this city one year before Mr. Montague's parents moved in here, and Mr. Montague re-In the part of the part of the difficul-ties that his father and his father's family had to encounter during their first year in the city. When they (the Williams) moved in there was practically only one house completed in the place. There was furniture enough for two families, but the carpenters had not yet got the framework of the Williams residence in shape. So when night fell the junior member of the family, after-wards Mr. James Williams, had to sleep in the open air in a crib. He slept the sleep of the innocent and healthy, and was not disturbed by the howis of the wolves which roamed the southern forests over the river. The schools which Mr. Montague attended with Mr. Williams, and of which place he is now the sole surviving pupil, was the first school started in London. It was taught by Mr. Ferguson, a Presbyterian minister, who was assisted by his wife, and whose chief faculty as a teacher seemed to be a thorough enforcement of discipline. The school was subsequently taught by first Sunday school was taught in the old school house. The first drowning that took place in the Thames after London was founded was that of a brother of Squire Owrey. He was a doctor and had just completed his education. He went in swimming with the late Mr. James Williams and got caught in the whirlpool. At that time the river was much narrower than it is now and much deeper.

a man named Oliver Trowbridge. The Another strange reminiscence of the early days in London is Mr. Montague's description of the manner of punishing culprits. In those days men were put in the stocks, which were erected at the southeast corner of the jail. The stocks included holes for the reception of the hands, legs and neck—the latter only used in the punishment of certain crimes. They had chicken thieves even in those early days, as Mr. Montague remembers seeing a man put in the stocks for stealing turkeys. Then the boys of the village added insult to indignity by pelting the prisoner with eggs. There was also a public whipping post in those days. "And," said Mr. Montague, "I have seen men whipped for very ordinary offenses in those primitive days of administering justice. But all those have passed away, and with them nave passed, so far as I know, every boy and girl who attended the first school in London except myself."

Acquitted of Bribery.

BELLEVILLE, March 9 .- John D. Ronald, of Brussels, Ont., manufacturer of steam fire engines, was last night acquitted on the charge of offering a bribe to Robert F. Houston, reeve of the village of Tweed, to induce him to vote in the council for the purchase of a steam fire engine of Ronald's manufacture. A similar charge as to Frank Campbell, a member of the council. was decided in the same way.

Pine-Malt is All the Talk Hereabout. "What shall I take to break up this bad cold?" Answer-Pine-Malt. "But it has gone down to my lungs and hangs on!" Then get a bottle of Pine-Malt and Hypophosphites instead. I advise this from personal and family experience. Pine-Malt acts like a charm, allaying cough, curing hoarseness and other symptoms with surprising quickness. It is a great family medicine, safe and pleasant. My faith in Pines Malt is unbounded. The new medicine is all the talk hereabout, J. G. CAL DER, pastor, Brooke Baptist Church, Lambton, Ont., Jan. 30, 1895.
