Durant, Elmore and Oliver, and secured by original bill of lading drafts deposited as collateral security for the loans. The company, he said, had been gradually withdrawing its business from the bank for some time past. Careful investigation led him to believe that the bank would be amply protected from any loss. "I do not believe the banks will lose any money," said Mr. Meade. "They, will hold the railroads responsible." We look to the railroad officials to take the initiative.

The Durant & Elmore Company is expected to have grain in Oneonta and in Boston valued at about $100,000, and considerable grain transit for the west. The company owns the business of the Dneonta Milling Company. Edward A. Durant, one of the firm, is said to have agreed if necessary to turn over to the creditors of the company all the property they possess.

A HITCH SOMEWHERE

Striking Paper-Makers Not Taken Back to Work as Expected.

Franklin, N.H., May 23.—Although the strike of the International Brother-hood of Paper-Makers was formally declared off on Saturday night, the striking union men did not go to work today. When they reported at the mills they were told that the mill officials had received no instructions to take them back. The mills have been operated in full for some time by strike-breakers, and until the local superintendent receives notice to discharge the non-union men the strikers will have to remain idle. About 75 of the striking paper makers in the local mill of the International Paper Company resumed work today after an idleness of two months. Twenty-five more will be put to work tomorrow. This number will operate all of the idle machines except one, which will not be started at present, and the remainder of the strikers will be hired when there are vacancies
