

FARMERS AND RECIPROCITY

RECIPROCITY.
Beginning with this issue we are reproducing every week a series of articles from the "Canadian Century" on Reciprocity. We do not hold ourselves responsible for all the views therein stated, but desire to put them before our readers for their own opinion. At some future time we will take up this matter for in the mean time it might be said to be "in the lap of the gods." Every change in a fiscal system has advantages and disadvantages, but if the good is sought for the greatest number, then the whole will ultimately benefit. If Reciprocity reduces as it will do the cost of living then one of the great social questions is on the way to being solved, and if Reciprocity means cheaper food then those who require such reduction will receive most benefit and they are the poorer working classes. How is it that in Scotland there are men who marry and bring up a family on $486 per week, and many of them become pillars of Society? There is but one answer, Free Trade—therefore a cheaper cost of living.

BE WISE IN TIME.
If a person pours poison into another's cup and thereby endangers his life he is prosecuted as a criminal, but no action is taken should he infuse into any person's veins the deadly germs of a loathsome disease. "Something of this latter crime is going to happen here in Campbellton this summer. The highest scientific authorities tell us that a teaspoonful of common street dirt may contain upwards of half a billion bacteria, the microbes and bacillae of Tuberculosis, Cholera, Diphtheria, and other contagious diseases. How many germs will link in a spoonful of Campbellton dust, impregnated as it is from all the rubbish lying around? We know or should know that the germs of Typhoid and other infectious diseases make a happy hunting ground in the piles of rubbish thrown down so indiscriminately and we cannot see how any person can be so ignorant or so wilfully malicious as to deposit all their kitchen garbage and refuse in their yards as it has been and is still being done here. By this carelessness or ignorance or what ever it might be called, the safety of the public interest is being endangered, and as we are to a certain extent the guardians of the public interest we desire to warn the people against practices which are at all times dangerous. There is not the slightest doubt but that Typhoid will be with us in the summer unless the people awaken to their danger, and the summer will be too late to blame the trouble on the water or any thing else, rather let us endeavour now to do something to prevent it. To this end we ask our people to act on the following rules and we cannot impress too strongly their necessity.

1st. Burn all the kitchen refuse and garbage in the stove.
2nd. Pour all cooling liquors and waste into the drains.
3rd. Take the very first opportunity to thoroughly clean out the yards and open places, and from now onwards see that there is no more promiscuous dumping of rubbish. By following out these rules we will do much to mitigate the ravages of any epidemic, and we have the full assurance and knowledge that when we have done our cleansing part, we will find the Board of Health ready to take up theirs, and successfully finish the work.
The nominations for Mayor and Councillors will be taken on the 14th April, polling day the following Tuesday, and it behooves us as taxpayers to set about getting our thinking cap on and also have a look round for suitable candidates. No doubt many if not all of the retiring council will stand again and in the position of the town at present it might be a good thing if they were all returned. It will be a good thing if the I. C. R. deal lock is cleared away before this present council breaks up, so that the new body will have a clear field to work in and they will find much to do. They will have to arrange proper fire protection for the town, apply with a strong hand the existing bye laws for the protection of the streets, and carry through the legislation to be asked for in Parliament. To them will be entrusted the making and baking of the town, and we hope to see a continuance of the upright dealing of the past, and a long succession of such men of high integrity as we have had.

Amatite ROOFING

Saskatoon Fair Buildings, covered with Amatite Roofing, Saskatchewan, Can.

60,000 Feet of Amatite Roofing

The accompanying view shows a series of buildings at the Saskatoon Exposition, all of them covered with Amatite Roofing. Amatite was selected because it was inexpensive, easy to put on, required no care or attention or expense afterwards, and would give excellent durability. If ordinary smooth roofing had been used, these roofs would require painting every year or two at considerable expense and trouble. Amatite, however, has a mineral surface which requires no painting. Use Amatite for every roof where you want to save expense. It is the most economical solution of the whole roofing problem.

Amatite Roofing requires no skilled labor to apply; it costs no more, (in fact much less) than other roofings; and the fact that it requires no painting makes the total expense far below that of any other type of roof covering. You can use Amatite for every kind of steep roofed building. We supply galvanized nails and liquid cement for the laps free of charge. Send for free sample and booklet. Address our nearest office.

THE CARRITT-PATERSON Manufacturing Co., Limited
ST. JOHN, N.B. HALIFAX, N.S.

The Canadian Century of Montreal believing that Reciprocity with the United States would imperil the future of Canada and that it would be specially disadvantageous to Canadian Farmers, wished to place its view of the question before the whole farming community and has arranged for a series of articles in newspapers of both political parties.

The first article follows and others will be published from week to week.
The Door Wide Open.
From The Canadian Century, Feb. 18.
If the reciprocity compact merely opened the door of the Canadian food market to American farmers it would be very injurious to thousands of Canadian farmers. It costs no more to transport American farm products to Canadian towns and cities than it does to transport Canadian farm products to cities of the United States, and the American farmers have the advantage of an earlier season. Moreover there are at least ten times as many farmers in the United States as there are in Canada, and so ten American farmers will get entrance to the markets of Canada for one Canadian farmer who gets entrance to the markets of the United States. That the American farmers will take advantage of the open door there can be no doubt. Even with a tariff wall against them they have succeeded in selling immense quantities of farm products in Canada, more than Canadian farmers have been able to sell in the United States. With reciprocity in farm products the ten American farmers will crowd the one Canadian farmer pretty close in his own market. But this is not all that the Canadian farmer has to face under the reciprocity compact. Owing to favoured nation treaties, any tariff advantages granted by Canada to the United States must also apply to the following countries: Argentina Republic, Austria-Hungary, Bolivia, Colombia, Denmark, Japan, Norway, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Venezuela.

Then it is provided "that the advantages granted to the United States shall extend to the United Kingdom and the several British colonies." This will bring about free entrance of farm products from those great food exporting colonies, Australia and New Zealand. In fact Canadian farmers will have to compete in their own home market with farm products from all the great food producing countries of the world.
Adding to the Uncertainty
There is always some uncertainty about farming. The farmer never knows when he puts seed in the ground what the weather conditions will be. There may be frost or hail or drought or too much rain. Added to all these uncertainties are Nature's variations there is the uncertainty regarding the prices which will prevail when the crop is harvested. How many acres should be devoted to one crop and how many to another depends upon a guess as to the demand there will be for the agricultural products at the time of harvesting and what prices will prevail. What is true of farm crops is also true of live stock. It is comparatively easy for the farmer to study conditions of the home market, but when he has to compete with the farmers of the world at large it is much more difficult to determine what the future will be.
It is now proposed to add to the uncertainty of Canadian farm products the uncertainty of the United States market. The Argentine Republic, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Australia, New Zealand and a number of other countries coming into Canada without payment of any duty will to a considerable extent displace Canadian farm products in the home market as a result of the reciprocity compact. To make up for losses in the home market the Canadian farmers will have to very greatly increase their exports to the United States. In doing so, in raising stock, in growing vegetables and fruit he will always be to consider what is most likely to satisfy American demands. After he has made his arrangements while his crops are still ungathered and the live stock, which he is raising specially to suit the American market, is half grown, the United States Congress may suddenly decide to shut out Canadian farm products of all kinds. Remember the Reciprocity Compact is not a treaty. It may be ended at will by the United States Congress or the Canadian Parliament. It is well that we are not tied to a permanent arrangement. In the Free Trade Farmers' Convention in Ottawa on December 15 and 16, 1910, recommended that a permanent treaty should not be made, but that any understanding arrived at should be put into effect by consent legislation. All classes of the community were of the same opinion in regard, and the Government could not have defied the unanimous sentiment of the community. So we point out that either the United States Congress or the Canadian Parliament is at liberty to end the agreement at short notice without blaming the Government for it. We believe that Canadians in general, including both farmers and city people, will find the arrangement unsatisfactory that they will be the Parliament has the power to terminate it, but if this forecast should prove wrong there will always hang the cloud of uncertainty regarding the attitude of the United States Congress.

There will always be strong influences at work in the United States that may cause Congress to alter the tariff. American farmers may be dissatisfied or American manufacturers may think they are not getting enough out of an agreement and demand better terms. Mr. Taft has made no secret of his feeling that the United States is to get greater concessions from other countries. If the United States Congress endorses the compact it will be because of this expectation. Under such conditions with what feeling of uncertainty will the Canadian farmer plan his work for a year ahead?
