Beaded Lace Fronts worth $4,50 for $3 at the Bon Marche. 4 Markham Libel Case.

When the case of Vanzant v. Hail way called yesterday morning at the assize court before Justice Wilson, the popula tion of Markham was largely represented. The matter has, since the issue of the writ, excited deep local interest, the parties being well known business men. At the municipal elections, held in January, the plaintiff was one of the candidates for the reeveship of the village, and the defendant, who was working for the opposing candidate, is alleged to have circulated slanders against the plaintiff of so serious a candidate, is alleged to have circulated slanders against the plaintiff of so serious a character as to justify the commencing of an action for $5000 damages. When the case was called, the counsel engaged, B. B. Osler, Q. C., for the plaintiff, and J. K. Kerr, Q. C., for the defendant, announced that a settlement was pending. This was altimately agreed upon, the defendant making the following apology: "I regret having made the statements complained of by the plaintiff in his statement of claim, and having heard Mr. Vanzant's denial of and having heard Mr. Vanzant's denial of them upon his examination herein, I am prepared to accept his denial thereof to the fullest extent."

Quails are now so abundant in California that they throng the roadways. While rewards are offered by farmers in southern counties for killing this bird, which destroys much grain, the Almeda and Contra Costa farmers say the quail is useful to them. It attacks their grain only as a last resort, and ohiefly subsists upon insects. Their destruction of ants is of incalculable importance. The quail's great foe is the wildcat. A quail nesting will cover fifteen to twenty eggs, and nearly every egg will wildcat. A quall nesting will cover intent to twenty eggs, and nearly every egg will hatch. They nest once a year, and during such periods the male is the most pugna cious defender of the mother and young The wily wildcat, as large as four ordinary cats, will stretch himself out and put out his tongue; the male quail will promptly fly down and peck it, whereupon the cat seizes his toothsome prey. From the London Free Press.

George Fulljames, the somewhat notorient for such offence is proferred by ous Toronto pugilist, appears to be the neanest man yet, judging from the heartle manner in which he deserted the person whom he was supporting on Monday night.
A short time since Cliffe was taken in charge by Fulljames, who put him through a course of training, accompanied him here, confident of his ability to defeat Jack stewart, and acted as his second in the sparring exhibition that took place. But after the result of the match was announced fulljames incontinently abandoned his man with the remark that he had bettar get on his clothing and go home. Cliffe was them left alone, and had no one to assist him until the second and some of the friends of Stewart gathered around, aided him to dress, engaged a cab and sent him home. This conduct has been severely censured, and it certainly is most improper, but only what might have been expected from such a man.

During the recent siege of Bhamo the Chinese residents were reduced to famine. They sent an envoy to make terms with the Burmese commander. The latter offered the Chinese 6000 rupees and permission to loot Bhamo on condition that they would evacuate the town and deliver up the two leaders of the place. The Chinese answered that they would accept the Burmese commander's terms if he would so alter them as to allow the leaders to be delivered dead, the reason given being that the men could not possibly be taken alive. To this the commander assented, and not long afterward he received the bodies of two dead men, as he had expected. It soon transpired that the Chinese took their pay, but made no attempt to carry out their contract. They stole the corpses of two fever victims and, after hacking them up with knives, sent them to the Burmese commander, who paid for them as those he had contracted for.
