

$4 Saved Two Fingers

The fingers were those of Mr. J. W. Beaud, of 539 Craig St. E., Montreal. He says, "A falling beam badly smashed my hand. Two fingers were so severely crushed that the doctors said they would have to be amputated. Naturally I didn't want this, so decided to try Zam-Buk first. I applied Zam-Buk daily, and by the time I had used $4 worth, the injury was completely healed. My fingers were saved!"

Just another illustration of the healing power of Zam-Buk. Accidents will happen. It may be your turn next. Better get a box and keep it handy. Accidents are less frequent than skin diseases, and remember this—

Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema, ulcers, skin diseases, and piles, as for cuts, burns, bruises. All druggists and stores 50c. box, or 3 for $1.25. Refuse substitutes.

Herbert Girling a Great Explorer

REV. HERBERT GIRLING, Anglican missionary to the Copper Eskimos of Coronation Gulf, passed away on Wednesday evening, February 11, 1920, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. B. Hoare, 303 Bell street, Ottawa, from pneumonia, preceded apparently by an attack of influenza.

The late Rev. Herbert Girling was born in England on January 26, 1890. He was thus just 30 years of age. His father, Mr. William Girling, lives at 251 Ilkeston road, Old Radford, Nottingham. Herbert was working in connection with the Church Army when he joined one of the parties of volunteers organized by Archdeacon Lloyd under the Colonial and Continental Church Society and entered Emmanuel College, Saskatoon, ten years ago to train for the ministry. During this period of five or six years, in vacations, he took up active missionary work, especially among the Crees of the Pas district. So readily did he acquire the language that last summer on the boats coming up from the Arctic coast some of the Cree boatmen told Mr. Hoare that Mr. Girling (who was traveling with him) could speak Cree like one of themselves. He responded to the urgent appeal of Bishop Lucas, of Mackenzie River, for missionaries to the Eskimos, and in 1914 went into the north, where he was associated with Archdeacon Whittaker, Rev. W. H. Fry, Rev. E. Hester and Messrs. W. D. Young, G. E. Merritt and W. H. B. Hoare.

It would take a volume adequately to tell of his work on the Arctic coast. Suffice it to say that he took an active part in the great venture to reach the Copper Eskimos of Coronation Gulf district, sometimes misnamed the Blonde Eskimos. He was never very robust, but was able to accomplish many arduous journeys in winter and summer. On one occasion he and an Eskimo companion found themselves with scarcely more than a day's food, 125 miles away from a camp which they must reach. The road lay across a barren rocky peninsula, and they knew the risk of being caught in a storm, and they traveled the 125 miles in two days.

He was truly one of Canada's great explorers, having traversed thousands of miles over the barren lands around Coronation Gulf. This region is situated in a remote part of the North American continent, midway between the mouth of the Mackenzie river and Hudson Bay. He penetrated to the undiscovered depths of Victoria Land and into Prince Albert Sound, and made many arduous journeys along the northern fringe of the continent. He made wearisome journeys tramping overland with pack dogs and in small boats along the coast by summer, taking the trail with dog sledge and snowshoes in the long winter months, living in snow houses, at times visiting the Eskimos camped out on the ice miles away from land, whither they had come in search of the Arctic seal and polar bear.

Coronation Gulf sprang into prominence a few years ago when Radford and Street were murdered by the Eskimos in Bathurst Inlet. One of these murderers was engaged as a guide by Mr. Girling, and in this respect his work was live after him. He will be sadly missed by his fellow missionaries and by a host of friends. Outside of a small circle, very few realized the importance, as pioneers and national builders, of men like Herbert Girling, who go quietly year after year, without the glare of trumpets, receiving none of the world's plaudits, whose sole reward is the sense and satisfaction of doing the duty ready to hand—faithful unto death. It is a remarkable fact that the death of Mr. Girling is the first to occur among the missionaries to the Eskimos of the Canadian Arctic coast since the establishment of the mission twenty-eight years ago, and to the writer it is indeed strange that this faithful worker of the north should die, not on the frontier, but in the capital of the Dominion.

A particularly pathetic incident in connection with his death is the fact that Mr. Girling was to have been married soon to Miss Lilla Stokes, of Sheewood Rise, Nottingham. After Mr. Girling came from the north last autumn for a much needed furlough, he paid a short visit to his friends in England, from thence he was called back to Canada to take part in the Forward Movement Campaign. A few weeks ago he underwent an operation on his throat, but had recovered sufficiently to resume his duties. His addresses were always a source of inspiration. He accompanied Bishop Lucas to Ottawa to give information before the royal commission regarding the introduction of reindeer into Northern Canada. On reaching Ottawa he felt ill and asked Mr. Hoare if he might go home with him rather than to the hospital. He was put to bed at once and seven days later he passed away.
