The Weekly Monitor.

As Nova Scotia occupies the extreme eastern section of the great Canadian Dominion, so British Columbia fills its extreme western portion, and while the waves of the former, those of the latter are washed by those of the latter are washed by those of the Pacific. From the pages of the Victoria, B. C., we have gleaned the following facts relating to the great Pacific province, which shew a progress equal to any now to be shew a progress equal to any now to be toil of so many years reaching the aim and kindly accept our thanks for late Cincinnati found on the great American continent. The growth and progress of the province, when measured by the growth and prosperity of the towns within it, are matters of wonder. The capital—Victoria—only dates back to 1853, when the land now covered with the homes of its citizens, was first laid out. To-day its personal property is assessed at $6,386,830, and the inverse of the province as the public know what he is doing, and thus an equipment second to none for turning out all classes of work, and by the addition of its water-motor power is enabled to execute all orders at reasonable rates and in excellent manner; and we rejoice to know, that they will the public know what he is doing, and thus an equipment second to none for turning out all classes of work, and by the addition of its water-motor power is enabled to execute all orders at reasonable rates and in excellent manner; and we rejoice to know, that they will the public know what he is doing, and thus an equipment second to none for turning out all classes of work, and by the addition of its water-motor power is enabled to execute all orders at reasonable rates and in excellent manner; and we rejoice to know, that they will be pleased to have visitors and on Saturday snow fell in small quantities throughout the entire day.

THE BRITISH COLUMBIAN FISHERIES.

The salmon fishery, as indicated by the cases of canned salmon put up since the inception of the business in 1876, when 9847 cases formed the output, to 1889, last year, when 414,204 cases were thus preserved, there had been almost continuous annual growth, in this branch of the fisheries. The value of this industry for 1889 was $2,414,655; that of fresh salmon, otherwise sold, was $219,700, while salted and smoked salmon yielded $40,000. Salmon thus gave $280,000.
