Schools and the Twentieth Century.

The Presbyterian Church of the United States has undertaken to add fifty per cent. to the number of children in its Sabbath-schools before the opening of the new century, as its way of celebrating the advent of the twentieth century of the Christian era. Rev. Dr. J. W. Warden, secretary of the Board of Sabbath-school Work, mentioned the decision of the Pope to celebrate the new century by a high mass from September to January, and of the Protestant Church to commemorate the occasion by the bringing together of many millions of money for the church work. The Presbyterian Church, he said, by the consummation of this plan, will be strengthened in the strategic point of the conquest of children. "The whole hope of the church is in the children. This is the grandest movement that has been taken up in connection with the advent of the twentieth century. What the church has set out to do can be done if every one takes hold, and I ask the assembly to send forth a mingled entreaty and command in the interest of this movement that will touch the hearts and the love of every church in the country."

Shall not Canadian Methodism emulate the zeal of our friends of the United States?

Jubilee Volume of Methodist Magazine and Review.

This magazine begins its fiftieth volume with a specially patriotic number. It has two well-illustrated articles on two of Canada's great industries—the Agricultural College, Guelph, and scientific farming; and the lumbering industry. Dr. E. H. Dewar and Chancellor Burwash contribute articles on the Higher Criticism and the Ministry of Canadian Methodism in the College. Dr. R. Wilson sketches the growth of Methodism in Eastern Canada, and Florence E. Withrow has an illustrated article on the pathetic story of Queen Louise of Prussia. A stirring Twentieth Century Address by Bishop Fowler, an illustrated poem by J. W. Bengough, an illustrated story of the days of Wesley, and a graphic sketch by W. E. Barton, "Sim Galloway's Daughter-in-law," are also given. Horseless carriages, a sketch and portrait of Rosa Bonheur, "The Browning Love Letters," the World's Progress, with engravings of "The House in the Wood," where the Peace Conference is being held, and other illustrations are given. There are in all eight illustrated articles. Every Methodist should have this magazine. Now is a good time to subscribe. With this Jubilee Volume the June number, containing the beginning of two new serials, will be given free. Price, $1 to the end of the year.

The Outlook Committee.

It is a large committee, for every class in the Sunday-school is represented on it. It is a busy committee if it lives up to what is expected of it, and it is sure to be a useful committee if it does its work with any good degree of faithfulness. The very name is enough to suggest its duty. It is on the outlook for new members of the school. It is to be
