Many new ceilings are whitened before they are dry, with the result that they have a smeary appearance when finished. If there is any sign of moisture on a ceiling it is not in a proper condition to be whitened.

When gilding on plaster of Paris, to satisfy the absorbent nature of the plaster, brush it over with linseed oil, at intervals of twenty-four hours, till it will absorb no more. Then go over it with oil gold size, ground with yellow ochre into a paste. If this size does not work easily thin it with linseed oil. When this is so far dried as to be just tacky, gild in the ordinary way with gold leaf, using a tip. Press the gold gently but firmly down with a bob of cotton covered with soft washing leather; then rub off superfluous gold, and smooth the surface with a second bob of cotton not covered.
