NOBODY KNOWS BUT FATHER. Nobody knows of the money it takes To keep the home together; Nobody knows of the debts it makes, Nobody knows-but father.

Nobody's told that the boys need shoes, And girl's hat wants a feather; Nobody else old clothes must choose, Nobody-only father.

Nobody hears that the caal and wood And flour's out together; Nobody else must make them good, Nobody—only father.

Nobody's hand in the pocket goes, So often wondering whether There's any end to the wants of those Dependent—only father.

Nobody thinks where the money will come To pay the hills that gather; Nobody feels so blue and glum, Nobody-only father.

Nobody tries so hard to lay
Up something for bad weather
And runs behind to what he may, Nobody-only father.

Nobody comes from the world's cruel storm To meet dear ones who gather Around with loving welcome warm, Nobody does—but father.

Nobody knows of the home life pure. Watched over by a mother, Where rest and bliss are all secure, Nobody can-but father.

GLADSTONE'S BILL.

Chamberlain Deceives his Followers Re ing the Feeling in America-Morley Condemns the Dogging of the Nationalists—Hartington's Appeal to the Unionists.

London, April 19 — John Morley, in a speech at Blackbarn last night, ref. rred to Lord Kandolph Churchill's ca ling this the "golden age of Eaglish politics." It was not much of a "gold age," Mr. Morley thought, when Irish members of Parliament were dogged by detectives, and when the Government refused either to listen to the appeals of the Parnellites or to permit them to speak in Ireland. The imprisonment of leaders of the Irish people was an odious spectacle, but it was the best argument that could be made in favor of Home Rule. He appealed to the nation to assist the Liberals in their efforts to compel the Government to adopt a wiser policy.

and a ban just was given at the Mansion House. Lord Hartington recounting the arguments against the Gladstone policy said he was unable to predict the result of the Irish struggle, but to predict the result of the trian struggle, but he was confident the problem would yet be solved by the compromise of 1886. Ire'and could not be dealt with as a colony. The decision rested with the democracy. If they were cision rested with the democracy. If they were weak and weary of the s'ruggle, Ircland might obtain independence. If they were strong and had the spirit of their kinsmen across the Atlantic they would not permit Ireland to be separated. In order that the struggle might be carried to a successful issue the Unionists must not fluch as there was still much work to do. The Government had wisely shown that they did not fear the widest extension of local govdid not fear the widest extension of local gov-

LONDON, April 19.-Mr. Joseph Chamberlain spoke last night before the B.rmingham Radical Union. He ridiculed the notion of the Glad-Union. He ridiculed the notion of the Glad-stonians that his sojourn in America had partly converted him to their policy. On the contrary, he had found very few persons, indeed, in America who approved Gladstone's policy. If the American Democracy had to deal with the Irish question, they would make short work of the monstrous pretensions of the National League, and they would not allow the sacred League, and they would not allow the sacred name of Liberty to be prostituted to the purposes of anarchy and crime. The Americans allowed no sentimental considerations whatever to stand in the way of laws made by the majority of the country. Never, in his opinion, had the position of the Unicnists been stronger than now.

London, April 19 —In a speech at Croydon last night, Mr. Goschen credited Mr. Gladstone with a desire to have Parliament rise to its former dignity, but said that Mr. Gladstone was overruled by his co-partner Parnell.

A SOUTHERN ROMANCE.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 18 .- A romantic story is reported from Anderson county. In June, 1865, William Smith, a young Georgian, arrived in the neighborhood of Stoney Creek on his way home from the war. Here he met Miss Mary Maaley, the belle of the village, and immediately fell in love with her. His love was reciprocated, and after a short courtship they were married. They lived together very happily until the lat of August, when Smith left his bride to pay a brief visit to his parents in Georgia. He promised to return in ten days. Days, weeks and months passed by, but Smith falled to return. In the course of four or five years Mrs. Smith, still being unable to obtain any tidings of her missing husband, mourned him as dead, and eventually married another man, also named Smith. With the latter she lived happily for filteen years, when he died. Mrs. Smith was working in the garden last Saturday aftermoon, when a stranger walked up the path, and approaching her addressed her by her Christian name. She stated at him a few seconds and then recognized her long lost first husband. Time of course had wrought changes in the personal appearance of both. The man who had so mysteriously disappeared in the perfect vigor of early manhood row had his half sprinkled with gray, and the handsome young bride of twenty-three years ago was now a sedate matron. The meeting, however, was an affectionate one. Smith made a satisfactory explanation of his prolonged absonce, and as the old love had not entirely died out, they determined to take up the thread of their just where it was so radely snapped aunder, and they are now enjoying their second honeymoon. Beyond the fact that Mr. Smith has been in California for the past wenty years, and that he possesses a comirtable income, nothing can be learned as to the cause of his mysterious disappearance and

A CASTLE IN THE AIR.

The mansions they erected Erected were of brick, And were with tiles protected; The air with dust was thick, As 'twould the builders smother-They built on unaware, I dreamed of something other,

I said, "your bricks and mortar Are hideous to view; I'll seek another quarter, That shall be free from you;

A castle in the air.

A more imposing dwelling You shall see, if you care, A palace far excelling-A castle in the air.

They guarded from disaster Their roofs with wooden beams: They fixed their walls with plaster—
I fixed my walls with dreams,
A dome of high expansion,
Alight with jewels rare—

That was a real mansion— My castle in the air. They never were contented, They fought with spades and tools; They said I was demented,

I said that they were fools. I built on in my manner, They hardly turned to stare; I crowned with many a banner My castle in the air,

When ended were their labors They entered in to feast,
They called their friends and neighbors
The wind blew from the east,

To them it did not matter,

The gale their walls would spare; It only chose to shatter,

My castle in the air. And now the shadows darken, The wind blows through the rain,

Where to the builders hearken, Who safe at home remain, In piles of brick unfettered; Yet mine was far more fair. My palace that is shattered,

My castle in the air. MABY RENDALL.

In Mexico City a few days ago, they tried a man's courage by shutting him up in a room with six rattlesnakes. At the end of six hours they opened the door and he was standing in a window sill, and the snakes had fought and killed each other.

"Well, Mr. Kicker, you'll have one con-solation when you dir." "Ab, thank you. What is that?" "The consolation that at last you are with the majority."

"Untold Agony from Catarrh,"

Prof. W. HAUSEER, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. F., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasai catarrh. My famil' physician gave me up as incurable, and said i must dio. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

THOMAS J. RUSHING, ESG., 2903 Pine Street,
St. Leuis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from entarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight mouths could not breathe through the nostrills. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sago's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

ELI ROBBINS, Runyan P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sago's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."
