

- Canadian foreign direct investment in Hong Kong reached $2.81 billion in 2002. Canadian banks and life insurance companies are the principal players, holding some 70 per cent of investments.
- Hong Kong foreign direct investment in Canada, which is growing rapidly, reached $4.9 billion in 2002, an increase of 28.3 per cent over the previous year. The eighth largest source of investment in Canada, Hong Kong is involved in a variety of sectors, including electronics, textiles, telecommunications, plastics, oil and gas, shipping, real estate, and hotels. Emerging sectors include infrastructure, agri-food (innovative processing technology, greenhouses, organic farming and products), and information technologies.