

which was released last week will serve as a basis for consultations with the private sector and the provinces on how to secure and enhance Canadian access to the world's export markets. "We are entering these consultations with no pre-conceived notions - except, of course, our support for the GATT", Mr. Kelleher said.

Minister Kelleher is making an official visit to Korea and Japan. During the week-end, he will be in Kyoto, Japan, to attend the Quadrilateral Conference. "I hope to explore with my colleagues from Japan, Europe and the United States the initiatives that we might individually and collectively take to bring a new round of negotiations closer to multilateral reality", Mr. Kelleher said.
