

was found a thousand years after the city perished, just where he was posted for duty! Faithful sentinel! we say. So faithful, too, is the Christian man, bearing the burdens of life, and keeping in view "the high calling of God in Christ Jesus," though exposed to the corruptions of business and buried in cares. He preserves his loyalty through the severest trials to the end; and his "record on high" will show that he followed duty and died at his post.
