Increase An Injustice.

An examination of the waterworks account, he says, will show that an increase in the rates would be an injustice, and the estimate of the waterworks account, he says, will show that an increase in the rates would be an injustice, and the estimate of the waterworks account on which the deficit theory is based is as follows: Expenditure, maintenance and distribution, $120,982; construction and shelter it from storms and excessive heat, $24,000; debt charges, $222,749, making a total of $392,536. Revenue—Water rates. $283,300; city supply, $55,200, leaving a deficit of $34,036.

These figures, Mr. Spence says, fall to present evitain facts. The $55,200 charges that you may resume it with comfort.

And when a person is brought to grief by death, his head is bowed down with sorrow and wee. Such being your condition, as well as that of your family, your brother chiefs support your bowed head and raise you up, and remove the clouds of sorrow from your horizon, so that you may clearly see the sun rise in the morning, and trace its course until it reaches the mid heaven, when its bright, effulgent rays will shine around you and you and your grantly, so that you may once more be cheered, and with renewed energy resume your great responsibilities, and be able to discharge your duties towards your fellow-men.
