Life to elderly people can only be pleasant if they feel well and the onset of disease is prevented by improvement in the condition of the blood. The reason for this is that every organ of the blood is fortified. They get nourishment if the blood is good. When digestion is poor the blood naturally is poor. of works, proposes to follow up the matter of bridging the Don for the purpose of extending Bloor-street to the Danforth-road, thereby securing easy access to the city for the numday Ald. Foster brought up the quesentering the city from the Danforthfrom prominent business men.

"I do not know of any public im provement of greater advantage to the city than this opening would be," said he yesterday. "When the city enginerr returns to the city I propose to go over the ground with him and look into the best location for a bridge. Then shall submit the matter to the board of works, and ask that the engineer be requested to prepare plans and give

Via Castle Frank-Road.
"The better plan would probably be to go over the Sherbourne-street brdige and down the present road to Castle Frank-road, thus avoiding the first ravine and greatly lessening the cost of the work. A great deal of filling-in might be done at both ends of the proposed bridge. The cellar diggings and city repuse could be conveyed there from the district as far south as "I think it would be well worth while to interest the county council in the matter, as it would pay it to contribute. All of this district is being built up fast, and is bound to come into the city, as it can go in, but a short time before requiring light, water and protection. It is now very much in need of a street car Service.

Ald. Foster was of opinion that the cost should be met out of the general rate. The road would be a main thorofare into the city, and now that times were good he did not anticipate that there would be much opposition. The west end subways and the present Don bridge had been paid for by the whole city, and the Lansdowne-avenue subways about ready to be

Mr. Foster considered that the Gerard-street extension was equally important. The ravine about 400 feet ast of Greenwood-avenue might be filled in, but in any event it was an improvement that was very desirable.

The sceheme will be presented to the boar dof works by the chairman at its boar dof works by the chairman at its first meeting after vacation and pushed vigorously. The aldermen in Wards One and Two and two in Ward Three are fully in accord with Ald. Foster, and the members from the other wards living in the northern section of the city are expected to support the proposition.

THE CHILDREN AND THE STREETS

Christian Guardian: A correspondent of The Toronto World, in a thoughtful and earnest letter, calls attention to the fact that "on the streets of our city thousands of children, ranging from 5 to 16 years of age, may be seen till 10 or even 11 o'clock at night." He very pertinently asks what is the probable outcome of such a state of things, and answers bis own question to the incontrovertible statement that there is "no better school for vice, no better means for the development of criminals and degenerates than the streets of any large city at night." He points to the terribile fact that in the city of not quite 250,000 population no fewer than 1000 children had indement passed upon them in the courts last year, and proposes a curriew or some compulsory system of keeping children off the streets at night. The editor calls attention to the correspondent's letter in a well-considered and sympathetic article. As he points out, the children are neglected, shamefully nelected, by their parents. It is the fathers and mothers of these children that are to blame. And when one considers a moment, one is appalled at the carelessness, shown in this egard by even parents of whom better things might be expected. For the parents of hogs of these children are respectable people. And yet night after night their boys and girls are on the streets. Now, what would be thought of any governmental or publianthropic institution that allowed its immates on the streets after dark? It would not exist a mouth. And yet, surely, parents ought to be more careful over their own flesh and blood than strangers, however poscientious, and governments, however public to be more careful over their own flesh and blood than strangers, however public to be more careful over their own flesh and blood than strangers, however public to be more careful over their own flesh and blood than strangers, however public to be more careful over their own flesh and blood than strangers, however on the problem of the propole, the cu

GOT OFF WITH 4 MONTHS.

August Tonia, who assaulted James Caven at 125 York-street, got off easily in the police court yesterday. Caven said the Italian had struck him with a loaded hose. Of the others arrested in the subsequent raid, George Wilson was fined $15 and costs, or 3 months, and six others $10 and costs.

Ald. Foster, chairman of the board erous residents in Chester and Todmorden, and assisting in the building up of the northeastern section of the tion, and his opinion that a means of road district should be supplied, has elicited many favorable comments estimates of the probable cost.

"I know the mayor said to the East Toronto people that the extension of Bloor-street was impossible, as it would cost a milion dollars, but that was an extravagant statement. The bridge would be a great advantage and convenience to the residents of Chester and Todmorden, and would open up the northeastern portion of the city. It is now a great inconvenience for these people to come down Broadview to Gerrard or to climb the Winchester hill. It would probably make a difference of a mile and a half, which is a great deal to a busy man.

County Council Should Aid.
"I think it would be well worth whole city, and the Lansdowne-avenue subway bylaw was about ready to be submitted to the people. The west end had secured substantial advantages, and this would remove any sectional feeling. In addition, the thru line across the northern section of the city would be equally beneficial to all portions of it provement that was very desirable. The county would be willing to aid on this proposition, as the resulting benefit would be very great.

On to the Boar of Works.

Editor World: I am very pleased to see by your editorial in The World of the 4th inst. that you are in favor of having Bloor-street extended to Danforth-avenue, which is Bloorstreet proper. It would be one of the best and most beneficial improvements ever done in the city.

It would open up a large section that has hitherto been neglected for want of convenient approaches thereto. It would also make Danforth-avenue one of the best residential streets in the
