Mayor Church was present to welcome the delegates on behalf of the city, and the Hon. Harry Mills, minister of mines, did the same office on the part of the government. Mr. Mills, in a brief address, said that al-tho he considered the present mining act a good act, he hoped to make some changes in it to make it still better. He declared prospectors were to the mines what pioneers were to the farming industry. He proposed, he said, to take steps to educate prospectors by establishing prospectors' classes in various parts of the province and furnishing them with blue prints country. The government, he stated, intended to further help mining by placing in the budget the sum of $10,000 to open up trails and clear the sweams. License fees are to be reduced from $10 to $5, except to those who staked claims by proxy, where the fee would be incerased to $15. Prospectors, he further said, would be limited to three claims and six by proxy. "In the past," he declared, "it has been the policy to give away too much land Not more than one per cent of the claims are properly developed."

A special evening session was held for the purpose of hearing four papers illustrated by lantern slides and moving pictures. J. C. Nicholls, general manager of the International Nickel Company of Canada, gave a most interesting illustrated talk on the mining again what our congress alone can declare war or determine the causes or occasions for war, and that it alone can authorize the use of the armed forces of the United States on ignd or on the sea. But to make such a declaration would certainly be a work of supererogation. "I am sorry to say that the reservations that have come under my notice are almost without exception not interpretations of the articles to which it is proposed to attach them, but, in effect, virtual nullifications of those Coal Situation.

In dealing with the coal situation, the president said, with the excep-tion of the coal fields of Alberta, Eastern British Columbia, Vancouver Island and Nova Scotia, Canada was dependent on the States for her coal supply. He hoped that by the ad-vance of applied science Canada would be able to make herself independent of the States for anthracite coal. The inroads on the forests was a coming alarming, and must be taken in hand at once. Canada, the president thought, ought to take a leading part in the electrical industry of the world, as she owned nearly all the asbestos. In addition she owned almost the world's reserve of nickel and cobalt. These minerals, he believed, possessed a 'strategic' value inasmuch as Canada's almost exclusive possession of them should enable her to drive a fair bargain with those nations that possess essential natural resources with which Canada is meagrely or unevenly sup-

In concluding his address, Mr. Mc-Dougall complained of the poor salaries paid to the teachers of mining subjects in the universities. He referred especially to the geological survey, which was "inadequate in numbers and inadequately paid."

Free Assaying.

The government will further assist prospectors by giving them two free coupons for every claim recorded, which will entitle them to certain free assaying of the minerals. There were, said Mr. Mills, 1,500 returned soldier prospectors. These men would receive prospectors. These men would receive the employes and their families.
