

THE ALBERT GATE MYSTERY

BY LOUIS TRACY

Without taking the least notice of any of the numerous occupants of the cafe...

The latter was gazing at the clock, and whilst doing so stroked his chin three times with his right hand.

Then the inebriated individual now hopefully nudged by drink, staggered towards the door and lurched widely round the corner...

Unconsciously he must have given some premonition of this desperate scheme for the two policemen lightened their grasp...

"What are you talking about?" demanded one of the men.

"I was only thinking aloud," replied Brett.

"And what were your thoughts?" "Simply that the sooner he meets his maker the better I shall be pleased."

cab opened, mademoiselle jumped inside and as if he were waiting for her appearance the driver whipped up his horse and drove off at a furious pace.

At that instant a small victoria with a sturdy pony in the shafts which had just deposited its fare in the vicinity of the Moulin Rouge, drove along the street.

Brett sprang into it and said eagerly to the driver—"Keep that cab in sight! I will pay you double fare!"

The man tightened his reins and raised his whip in prompt obedience to the order when suddenly two men jumped into the vehicle from opposite sides, seized Brett and forced him down on to the seat, whilst one of them said to the driver—"Take us at once to the Central Precincts of Police."

The man recognized that these newcomers were not to be trifled with. Without a word or a question he retraced his horse across the stone pavement, and Brett, choking with rage at this interference at a supreme moment, realized that for some extraordinary reason he was a prisoner, and in the hands of a couple of detectives.

By this time the cab containing the lady had vanished, but the barrister made one despairing effort.

"Listen to me," cried Brett. "You are making a frightful mistake. Your action at this moment may cause irretrievable delay and loss. If you will only do as I tell you now..."

"Shut up," growled the first man, "or it will be worse for you. Your best plan is my order as to keep a quiet tongue in your head."

It was not then that Brett lost his temper, but most certainly he lost it on this occasion. He was endowed with no small share of physical strength, and for an instant wild notions came into his head that he might perhaps succeed in throwing the two detectives into the roadway, and then overpower the driver, taking charge of the vehicle himself and trusting to luck to again catch sight of the vanished lady and her companion, who he doubted not, had awaited her arrival at the quiet corner where she joined him.

Unconsciously he must have given some premonition of this desperate scheme for the two policemen lightened their grasp, forced his hands higher up his back, and bent his head forward until he was in danger of hitting either his neck or his shoulder dislocated.

Will you keep your hands off me, you chief detective. You cannot escape, and you are only making the affair more disastrous to yourself."

Then Brett realized that further resistance was hopeless. He managed to get out of the cab, and he was able to assume a more comfortable attitude than he would trouble them any further.

EVERY ONE SEEMS TO BE TAKING "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Demand Always Increasing—Because "Fruit-a-tives" Cures.

The real value of any article may be judged by the demand for it. Steadily increasing sales are the surest indication of its value.

First introduced to the public in Quebec, the fame of "Fruit-a-tives" spread until today these fruit juice capsules are known and used in every section of the Dominion.

The only reason for this extraordinary demand is that "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine made of fruit, and is the only remedy that will positively cure Constipation, Biliousness, Headache, Rheumatism, Bladder and Kidney Troubles. One has only to read the testimonials given by "Fruit-a-tives" by some of the best known and most highly esteemed people of Canada, to appreciate the wonderful amount of good that this grand fruit medicine has done and is doing for the sick and suffering.

Noted, and then made his way to the Cafe Noie in Montmartre. There he watched him from the door for nearly three hours. He found him drunk, but held communication with no person.

This struck him as an important point. He made a memorandum of it.

"Soon after eleven o'clock he rose hastily and quitted the cafe, crossed the Boulevard, and hailed a cab. We would have followed him, but there was no other vehicle in sight. As our instructions were to arrest him at any moment he seemed likely to do so, we followed him.

He struggled violently, and told us some story about his desire to follow another cab, which he said had disappeared from the road. He was very angry, and we tried to calm him down, but he would not let us say a word to him."

"Perhaps, monsieur, you will allow me to say a word to you."

Under the name of the Edith Warren Stock Co., the Colonial Stock Exchange was formed in Cape Breton.

The company are now in Charlottetown, where they are reorganizing several of the largest stock organizations on the island. It is thought that they will make a decided hit this season as they have been greatly strengthened by their secretary, which includes additions to their staff.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

CHATTY NEWS OF THE GREEN ROOM

Contracts covering a long period were signed on Saturday whereby Thomas Jefferson will star under the management of Walter N. Lawrence in a series of comedies, the first of which is "The Other Fellow," written by George Tatten Smith.

Mr. Jefferson will begin his season during October on tour before opening in New York and will occasionally revive Lip Van Winkle at matinee performances.

The W. S. Harkins Opera Company, or it was known formerly the Lina Nola Opera Co., and the Robinson Opera Co. will probably open their season in Nova Scotia in Yarmouth, it is thought.

When the Robinson Opera Co. last season changed to the Lina Nola Co., there was a division in the ranks, as was told in the dramatic column of the Evening Times some time ago. Those who did not follow Miss Nola, went with Robinson, the manager, and played in opera for a time.

FAMOUS GEMS OF PROSE

NAPOLEON IN 1809 By William Tudor, Jr.

From an oration before the "States, town, and military officers" and citizens generally, in the Old South meeting house, Boston, July 4, 1809.

The close of the American war the naval and military forces of Europe were divided among several nations, and power was so nearly balanced that if the weakest was not safe from insult they at least could not be attacked with impunity.

A campaign then was brilliant if a single battle was won or a single town taken. War was a trial of skill and address, conducted with almost regular etiquette, and ended successfully with the acquisition of a province or the celebration of a marriage. These wars excited no very serious alarm because their ravages were confined to the immediate seat of battle, and the relative position of states experienced none or very slight alteration.

The world might be divided in affection between the contending parties, and espouse the cause of one province or the celebration of a marriage. These wars excited no very serious alarm because their ravages were confined to the immediate seat of battle, and the relative position of states experienced none or very slight alteration.
