OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The people of New Brunswick are justly proud of their public school system, and are well pleased when they are told that it is even superior to that of the best system of the Province of Ontario.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"The boys have been," says a recent writer, "because of perpetual toil and good weather all through the busy season, and perpetual loneliness in had weather and most of the winter season."

PRELIMINARY STATE

The herring fishery on the northern coast of Newfoundland and Labrador is reported to be almost a complete failure.

CRIMINAL STATISTICS

The criminal statistics of Canada for the year ending Sept. 30, 1890, which have been published by order of parliament, are compiled in a volume which throws much light upon the morals of the people of the Dominion, as compared with those which prevailed ten years ago.

The total number of convictions in each of the three provinces in 1880 and 1890 was as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Province, 1880, 1890. Rows: Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, P. E. Island.

Out of the 1800, 1,461 were for drunkenness, while in Nova Scotia there were only 442 and in P. E. I. 287 for that offence.

As we all know that drunkenness is quite as common in Nova Scotia as it is here, and that there is not as rigidly enforced in that province as it is in this, the percentage of convictions there would be much larger than ours.

Further, the convictions for drunkenness in this province in 1880 were only 650, against 1,261 in 1890, yet it is easy to prove that the liquor consumed and the percentage of drunkenness is much smaller than in ten years ago.

The ratio of conviction to 1000 of the population in various Canadian cities, given as follows:

Table with 2 columns: City, Convictions per 1000.

Montreal - 31.80 Hamilton - 40.75 St. John - 35.25 St. John - 35.25 Halifax - 19.15 Windsor - 25.00 Quebec - 27.74 Charlottetown - 27.06

THE GAZETTE

The friends of the Gazette will be glad to learn that it continues to flourish and to be in the hands of the public.

The business of the Gazette last year was exceptionally large, but this year, although general business is not nearly so good, the receipts of the Gazette have been at least 40 per cent. greater than they were in 1890.

The amount of news advertising received at the Gazette office during the month of October reached the large sum of $750, a record which no other city paper can equal.

We mention these things in no spirit of boasting, but for the purpose of informing our friends that the Gazette continues to grow and flourish, and that for the best interest of the city, the Gazette is now an established institution in this city.

The Gazette was started with a view to the interests of the Province, and it has been favorable to this object from the first. No politician has paid any money into this newspaper, and therefore the Gazette is not under any obligation to support any politician further than his views coincide with the general principles which we believe to be correct, and for the best interest of the country.

The Gazette is not, and never has been, a party paper, and it will only support politicians who prove themselves to be honest, capable and worthy of public confidence.

the establishment of Master Eggle, it was below. Upon examination it was found to be an ordinary globe, such as are found in thousands on any beach, worn perfectly smooth, and the cavity (about the size of a marble) filled with dark blue mud, very like marsh mud. The mud was moist and soft, but soon began to dry and contract. The stone shell was about half an inch in thickness. -Harris Journal.

The case of Rev. John Baird who in 1887 was inducted into the pastoral charge of New Mills, N. B., is now before the Presbytery of the Halifax and Sydney. He is charged with lewdness and it is alleged that Mr. Baird had failed in his duty in respect to church work, such as holding prayer meetings, Bible classes, etc., in certain places in the congregation over which he had been placed and subsequently resigned, and that when he had expressed astonishment that charges of this kind had been made against him, although he had received notices of the same from the clerk of the presbytery some time ago, the report of which he had himself acknowledged.

When Harpooned It Towed or a Bowline. A party of fishermen that came in account of the variety and size of the fish brought in by them, says a despatch from Tampa, Fla. All day long a steady stream of sightseers visited the boat and asked the men questions regarding the fish.

The fishermen brought with them the skins of three magnificent porpoise weighing, when caught, from 125 to 200 pounds. The greatest curiosity was a fine dark, black, large fish, with two long flippers extending like the points of a star from its sides. The length of the fish from the tip of these flippers was just 11 feet 7 inches. A man could be taken in his huge mouth as it was 27 inches in breadth. From eye to eye the head was 30 inches across, the eyes protruding on the outside of the head about 10 inches. From the point of the snout to the end of the tail was 12 feet 8 1/2 inches. The fish was estimated to weigh fully 1200 pounds, but there was no way of getting the weight accurately. Nearly half the under part of the body was taken up by the gills, which were laid in a regular, comb-like pattern on one side, then a coarse collar, backed on the opposite side with the most delicate gauzy membrane. The large flippers at the side were directed and curved in a constant direction, rendering and covering a row of bones, which were joined both lengthwise and crosswise, and cutting out two of the ribs lengthwise, they were found to be bound together by strong ligaments and black on top.

The fisherman had an exciting time catching the monster, and it took their three-ton schooner over an hour when harpooned. It was first about 2 p.m. playing in the shallow water near Eggmont Key. Hearing up they harpooned it with a 15 lb. line. It at once leaped high in the air, flung itself, and then started with a rush for deep water. The schooner threw a wild and was towed along rapidly. The big fish jumped frantically, and leaped in its efforts to break the line. It would run straight for half a mile, and then suddenly swing round and cut, whirling the schooner like a top. Five or six men on the monster from Whistlers every time. It seemed to show water, but that seemed to make him more furious. At the fifth volley it leaped suddenly and rushed for the shore. The men were crowded at the side, and the fish struck the schooner just below them, throwing a large log of wood and breaking the collar bone of one of the sailors. The fish seemed to be somewhat stunned by the blow and floated. Two more harpoons were put into it, and sunset bells were fired into its body. Ropes were then thrown around it, and it was drawn aboard. It taking the utmost strength of all seven men to get it up.

The Ignorant Freeholder. Frenchman - All here certainly is a place at last. Monsieur, I would some money, and you would like to see me.
