Ottawa Correspondent Sees Some Possibility of Trouble Over It.

Canadian Commission Has Not Yet Reported to the Dominion Government.

Canadians and Americans Anxiously Waiting for a Settlement.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—A Times-Herald special from Ottawa says there is a good chance for serious international complications between the United States and Canada over the troubles in the Yukon country. In places, such as Forty-mile Creek, where the boundary is supposed to pass and where some of the creeks are in American and some in Canadian territory, it is impossible to determine which belongs to "Canada" and which does not. In reference to the charges concerning United States trespassers on British territory in the Yukon district and the washing of gold in Canadian waters, the secretary of state says that this state of affairs arises from the fact that the commissioners appointed to define the boundary line between the two countries, have not yet submitted their report to the government. The districts alleged to have been invaded is a Canadian town named Cadahay at Forty-mile creek and is the headquarters of the mounted police in the Yukon district. There is a United States postoffice there but it is not recognized by the Canadian government. The Canadians and the Americans in the district of Yukon are anxiously waiting for the official announcement which will define Canadian territory from that of the United States.

The treaty provides for the restoration of statu quo, pending the appointment of delegates by Italy and Abyssinia to a year hence to determine the frontiers absolute independence of Ethiopia and abrogates the Ucciali treaty. Italy undertakes in the meantime not to cede the territory to any other power. Should she desire to spontaneously abandon the territory, it would return to the Ethiopian rule. REPORTS DENIED.

An Italian Newspaper Denies Reports About Archbishop Ireland.

Rome, Nov. 16.—The Italia says the rumors of the deposition of Archbishop Ireland from the diocese of St. Paul are evidently untrue, because under the present pontiff there has only been a single deposition, which was that of Bishop Toumey. The Italia, however, suggests as possible that if Archbishop Ireland committed further imprudences, the irritation of the vatican would be so great that he might be invited to resign.

TWO MEN DROWNED

W. Fuller and J. G. Miller Lose Their Lives Near Chatham Island.

Their Canoe Capsized by the Current—Kitto, Their Companion Escapes.

The duck-hunting expedition of A. J. Kitto, J. G. Miller and William P. Fuller, three popular young sportsmen, came to a sad ending on Saturday evening. When attempting to go through the treacherous currents near Fiddler's base, the three men, who were on a small boat, were swept by the current on to the upturned canoe, but Miller and Fuller perished.

Early Saturday afternoon the three started in a canoe from near Cadboro Bay for Chatham Island, where ducks usually come in after the storm weather. They reached the north side of the island in safety, but finding but few ducks in the marshes there concluded to start for the south side. When at channel between Chatham Island and Fiddler's Reef was reached they found the current very swift. Kitto is of the opinion that the canoe struck an under rock and the current catching it turned it over.

Kitto, who was in the stern, managed to cling to the bottom and was swept by the current on to the rock upon which the beacon is placed. Here he was discovered by two fishermen returning homewards, who took him to the family dock, where Mr. Virtue and family did everything possible for him. After a short time he was sufficiently recovered to be able to go to his home.

Virtue telephoned to the provincial police about 1 o'clock in the evening, shortly after Mr. Kitto had been taken to the hotel. Officers McKenna and Atkins immediately went out to the bay. They learned from Kitto that he had been in the canoe with Miller and Fuller, and that they were in the direction of the island when the canoe appeared to be travelling faster than Fuller, and when the second rock was reached he was no longer in the canoe.

Miller, who was a powerful swimmer, tried to swim against the current for Chatham Island, nearly a mile distant, but he being weighted down with heavy gun boots, and a full bag of cartridges, the odds were against him. He was before covering only one mile before he was overcome by the distance. Under these circumstances it was considered to be hopeless to make any efforts to find the unfortunate men. C. A. Godson and Mr. Schofield went out to Chatham Island on Saturday night, however, and returned at two o'clock Sunday morning. The search was renewed yesterday, but no traces of the missing men could be found.

Mr. Kitto lived with his aunts on Oak Bay avenue. He was about 22 years of age, and was prominent in athletic circles, having played in the intermediate lacrosse team for a number of years and taken part in other games. His father, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Fuller, live on Cadboro Bay road.

Mr. Kitto was reported as being seriously ill to-day from the effects of the exposure.

out amongst other countries like a star of the first magnitude. Speaking of mining camps the strongest indication of future stability is the constant importation and installation of mining plants and machinery. Hitherto this has been carried on under great difficulties owing to the want of cheap transportation. The completion of the Red Mountain railroad will to a certain extent remove the difficulty.

Something else, however, is required, connected with the coal mines in order to complete the process of smelting and refining the ores. With the construction of the recently projected Coast and Kootenay railway the city of Vancouver would probably be the location of the smelting and refining works. The coal and the ore at Kootenay could be transported to the smelting works by the early construction of this road, which will not only stimulate the mining industry, but will be of immense benefit to the struggling farmer.
