

Social Notes of the Week

During the past week the whole world has felt the thrill of the greatest tragedy since this world conflict began—the dramatic death of Earl Kitchener. Sorrow for the loss of this outstanding figure is heartfelt the entire over. His sleep now with our mighty dead, taken, as Earl Roberts was, in an hour of stress and storm, but leaving a name and a fame like a trumpet call, in the ears of his countrymen. A very fitting memorial window shown by Manchester Robertson Allison, Ltd., made us realize more than ever the grief of the nation. The draped picture of the departed hero, Britannia with the drooping head, and the laurel wreath, the broken column, the closed Bible, all speaking to the passer by in thought, not words, of the great loss the Empire has sustained. This window, which was designed by Mr. David Lynch, will never pass from the memory of many. It is the work of an artist showing that the "Path of Glory leads but to the Grave."

MacNeill, the leading factor of this very delightful society drama, but it is hoped before long the company will be able to give it.
