A BIRD IN THE HAND

The belief that early spring will see a decided trade revival is so widely held that it behooves the prudent shopper and the prudent shopkeeper to take note of the significance of the present day tendencies. If the economists are right in their deductions—and practically all the economists are in agreement—the spring trade revival means a stiffening of prices. The moral is plain. Failure to take advantage of the opportunities afforded by the very generous reductions already made in many commodities because of an opinion or hope that further and greater reductions are coming, may lead to a discovery that the time of bargains has passed and that the new conditions are less favorable than those to-day obtaining. The old adage about a bird in the hand is as true to-day as it ever was.

The American Ambassador in London felicitously endorses the idea, to which Sir Auckland Geddes gave expression at the Canadian Club of New York, when he describes Canada as the "interpreter's house where Great Britain and the United States meet on common ground." May we who are comrades in arms, as we have been brothers in arms, as he hopes, "never be strangers at each other's feasts."

Mrs. Elliot Smith returned home from England this week.

Rev. C. W. Rose, of Amherst, was a visitor in Wolfville on Tuesday. Rev. Mr. Rose is a graduate of Acadia of the class of '98 and is naturally grieved at the destruction of College Hall with its pleasant associations.

ACADIA NOTES

Dr. Cutten returned home Friday from Boston and New York, where he had been attending meetings of the Acadia Alumni.

The annual fair given by the students of the Seminary was held on Saturday afternoon and evening and was a great success. The rooms and booths were artistically decorated and the fair was considered one of the best ever given. Those in charge of the various tables, etc., were as follows:

Ice Cream—Hortense Griffin
Fancy Work—Mabel Pollard
Candy—Josephine Churchill
Tea Room—Helen Purdy
Side Shows—Ruth Pollard
Fish Pond—Elma Corning and Olive Burrill.

Dr. Simeon Spidle occupied the pulpit of the Dartmouth Baptist church on Sunday last, and Dr. H. T. DeWolfe preached at the Windsor Baptist church.

The Academy was especially hard hit by the big fire, because it deprived them of all their class rooms. However, the work is being carried on with first year and business in the Baptist church, juniors in the club room of the Academy residence and seniors in the dining room of the Academy.

Offices for the President and Treasurer of the University have been located in the Library and Rhodes Hall respectively.

Monday, Dec. 6, was the third anniversary of the terrible explosion, by the collision of the steamers Imo and Mont Blanc, which brought such disaster to Halifax and so many people.

A CLOSE CALL

A young man named Brenton, a member of the Junior class, had a very narrow escape at the College Hall fire. Shortly after the fire was discovered he went into the cloak room to save his gown and when endeavoring to leave learned that the door which was fitted with a spring lock had become closed and that he was a prisoner. With the fire all about him, he realized the seriousness of his position and tugging at the door called for help. Had it not been that Mr. Harry Farris, janitor at Acadia Seminary, happened to be near and heard his cries, Brenton would in all probability have perished. As it was Mr. Farris succeeded in getting the door open and rescuing him. He was dragged through the hall and delivered to fellow students. Mr. Farris did splendid service during the fire in quieting the fears of the inmates of the Seminary and in the use of such appliances as were available for the safety of the building. He also summoned Dr. Cohoon and assisted him in saving the contents of the College office.

The theory of the origin of the College Hall fire most generally accepted is that the disaster was the result of defective electric wiring, probably under the platform. While of course this cannot be fully determined the board of underwriters here agreed that such is the most likely explanation of the fire.

Some boiler factories are laying off men, but the poor chaps will doubtless be able to find work in some jazz band.

GREENWICH NOTES

On Thursday evening of last week, at the Greenwich Hall, the Greenwich Dramatic Club presented the three act comedy "Between the Acts." There was a good attendance and all thoroughly enjoyed the play. All the parts were excellently taken. The cast of characters was as follows:

"Dick Comfort, married yet single" Charles Fenwick
Edith Comfort, Dick's wife Madeline Bishop
Alexander Meander, Dick's uncle, blamed but blameless John Fenwick
Mrs. Clementine Meander, Dick's aunt, blameless but blamed Bessie Fraser
George Merrigale, an unfriendly friend Morris Bishop
Sally, Mrs. Meander's French maid Esther Pearson
Harris, Comfort's manservant Robert Bishop
