Why is a Ranger?

"Oh, a Ranger is in danger of congestion of the brain, if he tried to keep all posted up on every latest plan. He is but one lone mortal, at the crossing of the ways of a thousand different theories, of a thousand different days. He must be an expert woodsman and a guide and trapper, too; and must know in all emergencies the proper thing to do; how to fix a motor, mend a leg or rope a steer, play a tune on the typewriter to please the diplomatic ear; also how to run a survey, find a corner where it ain't, and, in extra stressful moments, exercise restraint. He must be a sawmill expert, cowboy and lumberjack, and an information bureau, plumb full of statistic fact. And he must be trained in botany, know every growing plant—so's to educate the cattle what they can eat and can't. He must know the birds and animals, the insects and the fish, their every need and comfort, their every wile and wish, including why a wood chuck would and why a dodo don't, as well as why a whip-poorwill and why a coyote won't. All professions and sciences and every common trade is the fund of useful knowledge for which he's highly paid. And still there's something to it that holds the Ranger on, when he tells himself and all his friends that he would fain be gone."—The Idaho Forester.
